THE LATE POPE LEO XIII.

George Alfred Townsend's Sketch of His Useful Life.

EPOCHS IN THE REMARKABLE CAREER OF THE DECEASED PONTIFF.

His Influence Upon Religion and Education—A Christian Gentleman, a Superior Magistrate and a Beloved Head of the Church.

Few men have left a greater or more lasting impress upon the age in which they lived than did Leo XIII., who has just passed away at the Vatican, exhibiting in his closing hours such physical vitality, mental vigor, moral courage and spiritual serenity as come rarely in human experience.

Pope Leo's place in history will be with that of the greatest and most benignant of the Roman pontiffs. It may be doubted if any of those who wore before him the mantle of St. Peter ever succeeded in captivating the imagination and interest of the civilized world as did the late pope. None of the valiant old men of his generation—neither Gladstone nor Bismarck—made such a wonderful impression as did the aged Leo. He possessed a marvelous individuality, which was heightened by his remarkable vigor and tenacity in old age. At ninety, when he gave Benjamin Constant a sitting for his portrait, the French painter was astonished at the brilliancy of his intellect. Yet with serene poise and strength he passed on for three years more to his jubilee, retaining for more than a quarter of a century that papal power which, it was supposed, was conferred for only a short time upon a feeble old man in 1878. He proved one of the strongest in physical endurance as well as in mental qualities that had ever been elevated to the papal throne.

As the head of the Catholic church the achievements of Leo XIII. are memorable. Even those not in the Roman communion freely admitted his greatness, while to the devout Catholic he was the personification of goodness. He was both statesman and priest, and his views, like his ambitions, were of the widest. His services as papal nuncio at Brussels gave him that stamp of the diplomat which never left him. In close touch with the affairs of many nations, his extraordinary memory, his fresh and earnest interest in the on-goings of the world, made his contributions to passing history of peculiar significance and value.

In America the late pope seemed to take an especially vivid interest, which was evinced in wise counsels to his people in this country on many occasions. To the republican form of government he showed himself a good friend upon more than one occasion. In his encyclicals on socialism is seen how his sympathy for the struggling and aspiring masses was balanced by his fine sense of the necessary order and stability of society. His refined intellect, his simplicity of life, his unaffected piety, all exalted to eminence by his extraordinary career, made him an inspiring personage even to those who did not recognize him as a spiritual ruler and teacher, and Protestants as well as Catholics mourn his death.

The story of the pope is an exceedingly simple and pretty one. He has been—though the pontiff, as it is called, of the most ancient ecclesiasticism in western Europe—an excellent citizen of our later world. He has been a good magistrate, a superior pastor, a gentleman and, it may be added, a prince. He was a prince in nature before he was either cardinal or pope.

From the time he was elected pope the city of Rome has been in the occupation of the king of Italy and has indeed been the political capital of Italy, the laws of that kingdom paying no attention to the previous laws and formalities which the secular state supplanted. But the influence of the pope as a spirit of education and of light has extended to the most remote portions of the world.

Above all other popes, and somewhat beyond his own record in earlier life, Leo XIII. has been a liberal politician. He has hailed the future rather than deplored the loss of the past. He has been one of the captains in the movement for universal education and has striven to make education and morals confide in each other. Not a single scandal from Rome in his papacy has been conveyed to the world. He has shown a friendly disposition to the world and could himself take place in almost any learned faculty or congress and hold his own in general knowledge with scientists, belles-lettres men and doctors.

Elected pope in February, 1878, he was then almost sixty-eight years of age, and he had been for thirty-two years the archbishop of one quiet city, Perugia, which once belonged to the papal states, but stood high among the old Italian republics or feudalities for its painters and men of gifts. This region, generally called Umbria, produced the highest triumphs of art in Raphael. In Perugia and its province the archbishop was as distinctly the foremost citizen or subject as the late Phillips Brooks undoubtedly was in Boston or Henry Ward Beecher in Brooklyn.

He was born at a mountain town in the Apennines, not far from Rome, called Carpineti, on March 2, 1810. To this little place of about 5,000 people his ancestors had been expelled from Siena about 350 years before. They were nobles in Siena, but had taken part against their countrymen when the Medici of Florence [illegible] Siena. The last independent republic inspired with passionate hatred against Florence, made a memorable defense, but the odds were too strong.

Retiring into the state of the church, the pope's family, named Pecci (pronounced Pechi), formed new friendships, and the pope's father was a count who either volunteered or was drafted into Napoleon's service when he overran Italy. The pope's mother was a countess, who brought property to her husband.

They lived in what is called a palace in Italy, a large building rising from the rocks, two stories and an attic high, with flowers and terraces about its base. It appears that the pope during all his life has known no want, but has enjoyed a private revenue such as a gentleman of noble descent would be apt to have in any country who had kept his estates.

He was born after the French republicans had overrun Italy and been everywhere victorious and the greatest change had taken place not only in the Italian people, but even in the priesthood.

The pope himself, Pius VII., had been taken captive from Rome to France and was only returned to Rome at the fall of Napoleon in 1814. He restored the Jesuits, who were the secular schoolmasters within the church, but they had fallen under the hostility of several of the kings and been for some time suppressed. Upon their return they opened schools and gave the city of Rome something of its old clerical and literary character.

In 1817 the late pope's mother took her sons to Rome and the next year put them at school at Viterbo, a city on a hill but a few hours' carriage ride from Rome. This lady belonged to one of the orders of the Franciscans and when she died was buried in their brown cloak and cord. Her death was nearly at the same time with that of Pius VII.

The next pope, Leo XII., branched out as an educator. The Jesuits' college was opened in Rome in 1824 with 1,400 students, and among these were the two Pecci boys, of whom Joseph was a Jesuit. He was three years older than his brother. These boys went home to their mountain town on holidays, and the pope was an active hunter and fowler in the mountains. Rome was to them like any American city to a family which lived in the neighboring country and spent the winters in the city.

The name of the pope was Joachim Vincent Raphael Lodovico Pecci. He always went by the name of Vincent Pecci until at a certain period after his mother's death, when he became generally known as Joachim Pecci.

He became fluent in the Latin and wrote verses and orations in it and gained prizes. After his mother's death he lived with his uncle in the Mutl palace in Rome. He somewhat knew Pope Leo XII. and chose his papal name with reference to that prelate.

Foot Injured.

Burgess Josiah Howard, while assisting in the improvements at Howard Park injured one of his feet by dropping a piece of iron on it. As a result he uses crutches to nurse the foot. It would take nothing less than a car load of iron to keep him in the house—has too much to look after.

Elopement.

Geo. Swich, who has resided in Emporium for two weeks, eloped with a young girl sixteen years of age from Austin, last Tuesday. The heart-broken mother came to Emporium and sought the aid of Chief of Police Mundy and every effort was made to capture the runaways, but they eluded the officers and left here Tuesday night on mail east. Later advice locates them at Baltimore. The young girl is an only child.

Overcome by Gas.

Assistant chemist Armstrong, employed at Climax Powder works, was overcome by the fumes of ammonia, last Saturday and remained unconscious for five hours. Dr. Bardwell was taken to the works, almost one mile from Emporium, who promptly had him removed to Sup't VanGelder's rooms, at Wm. Hackenberg's, on Fifth street. It was a very close call and thoroughly alarmed his friends. Mr. Armstrong was able to resume work yesterday, although yet very nervous and weak.

The New Fad.

An exchange says one of the new fads is men's socks for women. There is a rumor prevalent that some wives wear the trousers but no one imagined that the sock would be appropriated. If the women continue the invasion of the wardrobe of the men there will be very few articles of wearing apparel that man can call his own. His hat, shirt, vest, coat, collar, tie, and socks are gone. He has remaining his chewing tobacco and suspenders—not much of a layout for a cold day.

Isaac Hanson, who was brought here last week, from Sinnamahoning, and placed in jail, in a crazed condition from drink and disease, was yesterday taken to Warren Insane Asylum by Sheriff Harry Hemphill, assisted by Bing Hemphill and Mose Minard. Hanson came to this county in 1868 from Milltown, Maine, and followed the vocation of cook. Drink got the better—or worse—of him until he no longer cared for anything but red liquor. Mr. G. F. Balcom, who knew the family when he resided in Maine, says his people, who are all well-to-do, have tried to reform him and take the unfortunate home.

Especially Reduced.

While we do not, as a rule, advertise cut-price sales, we have decided to make an exception at this time and offer our entire line of hats and trimmings at a discount of 50 per cent. to close out the season's styles to make room for early fall goods. Some extra bargains in wash silks, former price 55c per yard, now going at 40c. A general reduction in all white goods. These goods are all new and up-to-date. First come gets the cream.

LUDLAMS.

Two doors east of Bank.

Notice.

A number of complaints have recently been made of the stench from pig-pens and chicken yards in the borough. It is unlawful to keep pigs in the borough without a permit from the Board of Health, and then only when the pens are constructed according to specifications prescribed by the board. Chicken yards must be kept so as not to become a nuisance or they will not be tolerated.

Pipe Organ on the Way.

The pipe organ to be placed in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, is expected to reach hear the latter part of the week and will be in place by Friday next, when a grand recital will be given by Mr. Reginald Key McAll, organist of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, of New York City, assisted by Miss Grace A. Walker, violinist, and Mr. George A. Walker, Jr., basso. This insures a fine musical treat. The desire to hear the organ is very general and a large attendance is expected.

The price of admission, 25 cents, is but nominal. Tickets will be sold by the ladies of the church.

Tom Lysett Buncoed.

T. J. Lysett, proprietor of St. Charles Hotel has been as proud Lucifer over his new colored porter and never failed to point with pride to the champion tip-chap. Last Tuesday Tom sent Mr. Porter up to John Cruise's after a box of cigars, giving him $5.00 and Mr. Porter never came back—in fact he took the railroad for St. Marys. Tom followed and at last account he passed Howard Siding making a desperate effort to capture his man. No doubt he is going yet unless the rain caused him to hang up until Pat Fitzpatrick and Sam Kline caught up with him and assisted in the capture.

Rushed With Work.

The PRESS job presses have been kept very busy during the present month in our endavor to catch up with the orders. However we are still prepared to execute, in first-class style, anything in the printing line, at fair living prices. The latest styles in papers, envelopes, cards and invitations always in stock.

Holding His Own.

John J. Hinkle, who recently came home from Philadelphia in very feeble condition, continues to improve and has gained several laps within the short space of [illegible] is better than a dozen dead men already. Hang to it, John, you'll come out on top, sure as oil does.

Substantial Improvement.

R. Seger & Company, merchant tailors opposite M. E. Church, have greatly improved the interior appearance of their establishment. The ceiling has been lined with pressed steel of a handsome design, neatly painted. The room makes a fine appearance, just as the man or boy does who wears their stylish clothing.

A Generous Response.

June 20, the Supreme Hive, L. O. T. M., issued an appeal to all subordinate Hives, for voluntary contributions for the aid of its members, who were sufferers by the recent floods in the west. Up to July 15th the amount had already reached the sum of $1,279.65. Gladioli Hive, No. 32 donated $10.00 from its general fund.

Mr. Ferguson Leaves Town.

Mr. Peter Ferguson, with his family, left town last Monday for Cape Briton Island, where he will reside. Mr. Ferguson's long residence here has gained him many friends and his departure is greatly regretted. His aged parents reside on Cape Briton Island and needing his care, he decided to make the change.

Ice Cream Social.

The Richard Martin Sunday school class will serve ice cream and cake on W. B. Thompson's lawn, Friday evening of this week. These busy little fellows are doing all in their power to make money for the new church and deserve the patronage of the public, which they earnestly invite.

Renovo Picnic.

The annual pic-nic by the employees of Renovo shops is being held at Tunnel Hill, below Sterling Run, to-day.

N. Seger is offering some special inducements in clothing this week. Don't fail to call and examine his goods before you purchase.

Will Drill for Oil or Gas.

A Wealthy Corporation Leases a Large Body of Land Near Gardeau.

For some months quiet preparations have been shaping to develop a large body of land near Gardeau, owned by Wm. Hackenberg, of Emporium. Orders have been placed with C. B. Howard Company for rig timber and operations will commence at once. There will be several wells drilled on the 3,000 acre lease. Experts fully believe this to be the connecting link between the McKean and Potter field. This land adjoins Cameron county and may open up a field in this county.

A DIRE NECESSITY.

Rapid Increase in Population Calls for More Houses—None to be Had. Freight House Filled with Household Goods.

The continued increase in the population calls for immediate action on the part of our citizens if the new comers are to be provided with homes. We are informed the freight houses are blocked with household goods, held there by persons who came here to reside and are compelled to board, being unable to secure houses.

The flattering condition of Emporium, our manufacturing plants giving steady employment to a large increased number of men—the furnace and Howard & Company giving employment day and night—will warrant our citizens in providing a large number of dwelling houses that would command a reasonable rental.

The Emporium Iron Company, since Mr. Andred Brady took charge of the property, has increased its business and now that more extensive improvements have been completed that will result in the employment of two or three hundred additional men, on doubt many will desire to reside here. Let us get together and see what can be done to relieve the scarcity of houses. If individuals do not care to attempt the undertaking let us organize a stock company and erect fifty houses at once. Who will act?

Too Much Haste.

An Ohio paper hits the nail on the head when it says: "Man's business requires haste. The average business and professional man eats in a hurry and gets dyspepesia. He walks in a hurry and gets apoplexy. He talks in a hurry and gets the lie. He does business in a hurry and becomes bankrupt. He reads in a hurry and is superficial. He votes in a hurry and produces corruption. He marries in a hurry and gets a divorce. He trains his children in a hurry and develops spendthrifts and criminals. He gets religion in a hurry and forgets it in a hurry. He makes his will in a hurry and leaves a legal contest. He dies in a hurry and goes to the devil—and his tribe increases."

Camping-Out Parties.

Camping-out parties appear to be more popular here this season than ever before. A large number of mothers, accompanied by their children [illegible] up in the clouds—while another party left on Friday for "Punkey Camp" on Hick's Run. This last party is composed of Chas. T. Felt, H. C. Olmsted and Herbert Day, accompanied by their wives and children. They took plenty of substantials along and all being strict Baptists and Presbyterians will enjoy the pure mountain spring water.

Barr-Miller.

At the parsonage of the First Methodist Episcopal church, last Tuesday morning, at 11 o'clock, MR. WALTER E. BARR and MISS MARGARET G. MILLER, of Sterling Run, were united in marriage by the pastor, the Rev. O. S. Metzler. Attending them were Mr. O. D. Miller, of Buffalo, and Miss Ethel Barr, of Sterling Run, brother and sister of the bride and groom respectively. Mr. and Mrs. Barr will reside in Sterling Run, where they enjoy the esteem of a large circle of friends and where Mr. Barr is identified with a leading industry of that place.

Death of Popular Railroader.

Mr. W. M. Swartz, our townsman, who is cook in Craven's camp (Howard's No. 18) was called to Clearfield last week to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, Mr. C. C. Moore, aged 38 years, who died very suddenly of peritonitis, on July 13th, leaving a wife and five children. Deceased was in the employ of the New Central R. R., at Munson, in charge of the car department. The United Mine Workers attended the funeral in a body, eleven collieries closing down for the funeral, over 500 men attending.

Wrist Broken.

Hugh Swartz, aged 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Swartz, who is employed in Howard Company's mill met with an accident last Monday. While attempting to step around a lumber truck he fell to the ground, a distance of eighteen feet, breaking his left wrist. Dr. Smith reduced the fracture and while the injury is quite painful the young man is doing as well as could be expected.

St. Louis Flood.

About $45.00 was collected at the various churches last Sunday evening, and arrangements has been made with the Bank to receive money from anyone wishing to increase the amount.

The subscriptions are entirely voluntary, and the Bank will recive sums of one penny or more.

Stolen.

That chap who borrowed or stole a bridle at A. Smith's camp, on Hick's Run, on the 5th of July, will save some trouble by returning said bridle not later than next Wednesday.

Some experimental fields are to be seen in this locality of alfalfa, that kind of clover whose top roots go down to water through the distance of thirty feet, and from which in favorable localities three and even four crops of hay are cut a year. If we had to take choice between Cleveland soup and Bryan starvation we would prefer to commit suicide. A man whose lasting aparatus is so badly out of whack that he can't tell the difference between Republican biscuit and Democratic soup—well, you can put some gravy on a rubber overcoat and the fool would eat it for salad.—Yellow Jacket.

An exchange tells of a knowing young wife who cured her husband of staying out late at night in an original way. Before going to bed she would place two easy chairs together before the sitting-room grate and then hold a lighted match to a cigar until the room had a faint odor of tobacco smoke. Although her husband never said a word to her about noticing anything, three "applications" effected a complete cure.

Speaking of Crawford county's claim to having the oldest goose in the country, aged 69 years, which antique specimen is alleged to have laid four eggs last spring and hatched out as many goslins, the Bellefonte Watchman says: "We have a lot of old geese here in Center county, but they don't lay eggs. They borrow other people's newspapers, then cackle away because the editor doesn't run it to suit them."

A Philadelphia paper states that the wearing of socks instead of stockings is a fad among the fashionable girls of the Quaker City. There's no use in trying to muzzle the press of Pennsylvania. It is bound to get the news and print it no matter how personal or secret the news may be. "They would put their foot in it if they should become so mannish," says one of their number who opposes innovations.—Era.

Joseph Snyder, an athlete of 92, who lives in Aetna, N. Y., challenges any man of 75 or older to walk from 10 to 50 miles. Mr. Snyder says: "I'll walk him either with or without canes, though I prefer to carry one just for company. I walk at least ten miles every day, and the fellow who takes up my challenge will have to scratch gravel mighty lively to win."

Without leaving a clew to her identity an elderly woman left a package containing $11,110 in green backs at the door of James Mealey, of Schuylerville, N. Mr. Mealey has been in financial difficulties, and recently went through bankruptcy, his store and stock of goods being sold to meet his obligations.

By his will, filed in the surrogate office, New York, the late Paul B. Du Chaillu, explorer and writer, bequeaths all his estate to his friend, Henry R. Hoyt. Mr. Hoyt was named as executor. The will was executed in New York nearly three years ago. The petition which accompanied the will, filed by Mr. Hoyt, set forth that the testator left no real estate in New York state and that he left personal [illegible] except that of amassing a fortune. Calling one day on a consul on business matters he was offered a cigar by the official. "No, thank you," said Sir Thomas (then Mr.) Lipton. Efforts to impress upon the minds of young people that marriage is a serious matter are not always successful. Louisiana, however, has taken an advanced step in that direction. Her legislature at its last session passed an act punishing by imprisonment at hard labor those husbands who desert their wives or fail to support them. The act was thought to be unconstitutional, but the supreme court has decided that it is valid.

About 25 years ago, the boy says, he quarreled with Prince Bismarck and fled from Germany, giving up home, position and money. In New York he was at one time a dishwasher.

This is not considered by the dentists to be a liberal price.

THE IDEA IS EXCELLENT.

That Expressed in the Iowa State Convention Is in Every Way Commendable.

So much has been heard of "the Iowa idea" regarding the tariff that the impression had been created in some minds that it was a very revolutionary and upsetting one. In fact, certain overzealous democratic journals had spoken of the matter much as though Iowa had suddenly decided to break loose from all its republican traditions and go over bodily to free trade. Of course no one who has kept track of what is really going on in Iowa and elsewhere had been misled by such foolish and unwarranted assertions. There has not been the slightest danger that Iowa republicans would forsake protection for free trade, and the democratic hubbub has been wholly without tangible cause, says the Troy Times.

The proceedings in the Iowa republican state convention held at Des Moines made it clear that the party is sound on all the distinguishing features of republican doctrine. As to protection, the platform is as unequivocal as any declaration on that subject can be. It says: "We reiterate our faith in the historic principle of protection. Under its influence our country, foremost in the bounties of nature, has become foremost in production. It has enabled the laborer to successfully insist upon good wages, and has induced capital to engage in production with a reasonable hope of fair reward. Its vindication is found in the history of its success and the rapidity with which our naitonal resources have been developed and our industrial independence secured, and we heartily renew our pledge to maintain it." What could be more uncompromising as an affirmation of loyalty to protection?

So "the Iowa idea" as it found expression in the republican state convention is seen to be a very excellent and commendable one. To be sure, the convention took occasion to add that it did not regard schedules in tariff laws as sacred enactments, and it said they should be just, fair and impartial, should guard against both foreign control and domestic monopoly and should be changed from time to time to meet varying conditions. But there is nothing very alrming in all this. Precisely the same views are held by many republicans, if not by the great majority. The party believes in protection, and it believes protection should be uniform in its application and favor no individual or interest at the expense of others. And that revision of the tariff when made with the retention of protection in view should be undertaken by the friends and not the enemies of protection is something to which all true republicans subscribe.

[illegible] Roosevelt and voiced its desire for "his unanimous nomination as his own successor," thus putting itself unequivocally in line with what is indisputably the sentiment of the party throughout the country. It renominated Gov. Cummins and the other state officers and thus finished up an admirable day's work, the effect of which must be to assure republican harmony in the state, increase party enthusiasm and earnestness throughout the country and disappoint democratic hopes of profiting by republican dissension. Republicans are "solid" for republican principles everywhere, and the people are with them.

AS TO REVENUE REDUCTION.

Demands of Democratic Organs That Will Not Meet with Compliance.

The new fiscal year is only a few days old, but already there are demands from some foolish newspapers for a reduction in the revenue. The surplus was in the neighborhod of $53,000,000 for the twelve months which ended with June 30, 1903. This sum appears so large to those papers that they are afraid of a currency congestion in the treasury which will derange trade. They forget, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, that the surplus was a great deal larger in the preceding fiscal year. It was about $92,000,000 then, but the revenue reduction which was instituted cut down the figure in the year just ended to a little less than $53,000,000.

An immense expansion in importations in the past twelve months, which had not been looked for by anybody, was the reason why the surplus did not shrink farther than the $53,000,000 mark. At the time when the reduction was being made everybody, in and out of congress, supposed that the cut would bring the surplus in the year which has just closed down to $30,000,000, or below that line. The vast increase in imports, however, kept the revenue up to a high mark, notwithstanding the removal of many internal taxes. The country can not count on the maintenance of this import expansion. It will not be safe to calculate on a $53,000,000 or a $50,000,000 surplus in the year which has just begun.

Moreover, the French company is to be paid, if Colombia ratifies the Panama canal treaty, and the probability is that she will. This would make a pretty big hole in the surplus. This overflowing treasury of the past year or two cannot be counted on to continue. There ought to be a margin of $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 of an excess of receipts over expenditures to allow for possible declines in income or expansions in outgo. A full treasury is a very good thing for a big and growing country like the United States to have all the time. A margin of $50,000,000 cannot possibly do the country any harm, but may, on the other hand, avert harm. If any one thing in relation to the action of congress for the next two years can be predicted with absolute confidence it is that there will be no revenue reduction of any sort by statute within the lifetime of the present national legislature.

DEMOCRATS BUMP BRYAN.

The One Lucid Deliverance of the Recent Iowa Democratic Convention.

It is one of the curiosities of "politics" that the democratic party regularly holds state conventions in such states as Iowa and solemnly passes "resolutions," as if they amounted to anything. Iowa is one of the most prosperous states in America, and a gathering of the party of calamity in such a state must necessarily be a convocation of very absurd persons, says the San Francisco Chronicle. For example, the Iowa democratic convention announced the "financial policy" of the unterrified in the following terms:

"We insist that the integrity of the money of the nation be guarded with zealous care, and demand that it shall be sufficient in volume to meet the needs of the business interests of the country, and that it shall be safeguarded by careful legislation so as to prevent gamblers of Wall street from cornering the money market, thus inflicting untold injury upon the smaller business men, the farmers and the laborers of the land."

Will anyone, after reading that "plank," state what law the Iowa democracy desires to have enacted or repealed? Or what, if anything, it would do about the currency if it could?

Nevertheless, there was one matter wherein the Iowa democrats knew perfectly what they didn't want. The convention formally washed its hands of the "Chicago platform," and therefore, by inference, of Bryan and all his works. So much sense, at least, the Iowa democrats have imbibed from their republican environment. It was the one lucid deliverance of the session. The committee did not report a resolution "reaffirming" that celebrated document, whereupon one of the crazier sort introduced such a resolution of his own. That was squarely voted down, and since Bryan will belong to no party which does not stand by the Chicago platform, the effect was to read Bryan out of the democratic party so far as the democrats in a strong republican state could do so. It is significant of trouble, however, that this was only accomplished by a majority of 109 and a fraction in a convention of 818. There were 354 delegates who stood by the prophet of calamity. It is probable that most of them will continue to stay by him and follow him into the party of united and irreclaimable cranks which he is morally certain to organize and lead when a few more democratic conventions have turned him down. All the democratic orators are crying for peace in the democratic ranks, but there is no peace. And there will be none until Bryan's nominal connection with the party is formaly dissolved.

PAYNE IS ATTACKED.

[illegible] Malicious

There is every reason to believe that Postmaster General Payne will remain in the cabinet, at least until the postal scandals have been disposed of. This will be disappointing to those who have been trying to force his retirement, and they are doubtless chagrined at the announcement of President Roosevelt's faith in the director of the postal affairs, says the Cleveland Leader.

Postmaster General Payne occupies now very much the same position that Secretary of War Alger did after the close of the war with Spain, and for practically the same cause. Gen. Alger was attacked by those who were desirous of hitting the chief executive over the shoulders of the head of the war department. The confusion resulting from the attempt to meet the exigency arising out of the war with Spain was seized as good ground for attacking the administration, and Gen. Alger, being at the head of the war department, was chosen as the target. It is now so with Postmaster General Payne. Although every alleged irregularity in his department was committed before he became postmaster general there is a disposition to hold him responsible in a measure, and to drive him from the department, if possible. President Roosevelt is himself beyond attack, and all the enemies of the administration know that. Therefore, the postmaster general has been chosen as the victim, the belief being that his forced retirement from the cabinet would reflect upon the administration directly and upon the president indirectly.

But the president stands by the postmaster general, and the chances are that Theodore Roosevelt will not change his position either.

CURRENT COMMENT.

☞The genuine Iowa idea can be identified readily by the smile of perfect tranquillity which overspreads its face. —Chicago Inter Ocean.

☞The Iowa idea that republican national platforms are good enough for steady company is a safe and sensible proposition. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

☞Mr. Bryan is reported to be ready to "pitch the song in the old key." But the existing political situation opens with a 1903 patent time-lock.—Albany Argus (Dem.).

☞A deep disappointment pervades the democratic papers over the discovery that the Iowa idea is not a case of free trade. The notion that Iowa republicans would take up with the soup-house relic is amusing. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

☞The people of Iowa have confidence in Senator Allison. One of the few who were present at the formation of the party, he has stood by it in all its work, has taken part in the deliberations of the state and national leaders, and has a fund of experience from which to draw wisdom that makes his opinion to be respected, because it has been learned by experience that he is seldom in the wrong.—Davenport Times.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Its Convention at Detroit Is a Great Success.

About 17,000 Delegates Already On the Ground — Leading Methodists Address Enthusiastic Crowds at Four Big Pentecostal Tent Meetings.

Detroit, Mich., July 17.—Last night four great pentecostal meetings were held by the Epworth leaguers in Tent Ontario, Central M. E. church, the Detroit opera house and the Fort Street Presbyterian church. Tent Ontario, with a seating capacity of 5,000, was jammed to suffocation and the opera house and the Central M. E. church were crowded to their utmost capacity, while the Fort Street church, which is only a short distance from Tent Ontario and consequently suffered by reason of the great meeting there, was comfortably filled. At the headquarters of the convention committee it was said at 10 o'clock that the total registration of delegates had reached 17,000, with more arriving on every train.

Every seat in Tent Ontario was occupied and delegates stood about the edges of the tent, which had been raised to admit air, six and seven deep. Back of the speakers and singers' platform blazed a great electric Epworth league emblem in colored lights. It was an inspiring sight when Rev. A. C. Crews, the chairman of the meeting, stepped forward and announced that Rev. G. A. Reeder, of Cleveland, would open the meeting with prayer. Bishop Galloway, of Jackson, Miss., bishop of the Methodist church south, was the first speaker on "The Eighteenth Century Pentecost."

Mr. Galloway recalled the pentecostal meeting in 1739 that resulted in the founding of Methodism by John Wesley and his associates, and graphically pictured the men who were present at that meeting. He declared that Wesley and his coadjutors were guided by the divine spirit in their founding of the church, for, he said, nothing conceived entirely by human instrumentality could have achieved such mighty things as has Methodism.

Bishop Galloway, himself a southern man, referred to the late President McKinley's declaration while in the south, that the Confederate graves should be decorated on Memorial day as well as the Federal, and his name was greeted with a great burst of applause.

Bishop Goodsell was to have spoken on "The First Pentecost," but illness prevented his attending the convention, and when Chairman Crews announced that his place would be taken by Bishop Joyce, of Minneapolis, president of the Epworth league, the great audience broke into ap[illegible] the front of the platform.

The same program was followed at the other three meetings and the same subjects discussed by the speakers.

Detroit, Mich., July 18.—There was no lessening of enthusiasm among the Epworth leaguers last night, and Tent Ontario, Auditorium Epworth, the Detroit opera house and the Central M. E. church, where the night meetings were held, were crowded to their capacity. Every seat in the big tent was occupied and people were turned away from the opera house in great numbers, while in the church every pew was crowded and chairs were placed in the aisles. "The Field Near at Hand," "The Field Far Away" and "The Part in the World's Evangelization" were the topics of the evening at all four meetings.

Will Open the Ports.

Washington, July 17.—The Manchurian question has been settled satisfactorily to this government. Assurances have been received from the Chinese government that it will, in the near future, open as treaty ports several ports now closed to the world's trade. The Russian government has conveyed formal assurance to the United States government that it will not, in any way, oppose such opening. While the ports to be opened are not yet specified, it is gathered from the communications received that they are Moukden, the principal inland port of Manchuria, and Ta Tung Kao, at the mouth of the Yalu river.

P. M. Arthur Dies.

Winnipeg, Man., July 17.—P. M. Arthur, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, dropped dead at midnight while speaking at the banquet closing the annual union convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers which has been in session for the past few days. Mr. Arthur had just arisen to respond to a toast and repeated the words: "It may be my parting words to many of you," when he fell backwards and expired a few minutes afterwards.

Shot His Daughter's Assailant.

Indiana, Pa., July 17.—Margaret Barkley, aged 11 years, daughter of John M. Barkley, a farmer, was assaulted Wednesday night by Frank Will, a tramp, while she was returning from the postoffice. The child crawled to her parents' home after the outrage and her father, accompanied by a number of others, started in pursuit of the man. He was found in a house nearby and was probably fatally shot by Barkley.

Negro Shot Three People.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 17.—Warren Welch, an unmarried negro, aged 30, is under arrest at South Dover, charged with assault with intent to kill. Welch lived on a farm near South Dover with another negro and his wife. Early yesterday he went to their bedroom and shot both as they lay in bed. A nephew of the woman ran up stairs and was shot by Welch as he entered the room. This man is seriously hurt and is likely to die. The couple who were in bed were not badly hurt. Welch escaped to the woods, where he was captured later.

A DEADLY TORNADO.

A Storm Caused a Property Loss of $2,000,000 at Streator, Ill.

Streator, Ill., July 18.—A tornado killed five persons, injured a score of others and caused a property loss of $2,000,000 here last night. The dead:

Harry Doyle.
Nels H. Bivens.
R. Purcell.
Charles Snyder.
Unknown negro.

All except Purcell were killed at the race track. New buildings had just been erected and the races were to have been given next week. Not a building is left standing. All of the buildings at Electric park were destroyed and the amphitheatre of the ball park was blown away.

Stauber's clothing factory, a two-story brick building, was blown down and all the stock ruined. The Vulcan Western Co.'s plant suffered heavy loss. Purcell was killed there. The Indiana, Illinois & Iowa bridge, costing $1,000,000, is nearly half gone; the hoisting works and buildings at Spring Hill shaft were ruined; many buildings in Kingsley, four miles west of Streator, were blown down and several persons injured. Many houses were unroofed and otherwise damaged. Telephone and telegraph lines are nearly all down and details are meager.

Mendota, Ill., July 18.—Four persons were killed and ten others seriously injured by a tornado which struck the northern part of this city last night. Everything in the storm's track was leveled to the ground. The known dead are:

Cora Boisdorf, aged 15.
Ora Luny, aged 19.
—— Shamel, boy, aged 13.
—— Shamel, boy, aged 4.

Nearly every member of the Boisdorf family was injured. The family took refuge in the cellar to escape the storm. The house fell in on them.

INQUIRY RESUMED.

Inquest Into the Death of Recorder Brown, of Pittsburg, Is Not Ended.

Pittsburg, July 18.—At the inquest into the death of the late Recorder J. O. Brown, which was resumed Friday, the recorder's physician, Dr. W. H. McKelvey, testified that when he was called to visit the recorder on March 14 last he was told that the patient had been using trional and that he was taking too much. The doctor prescribed some strychnine and a few tablespoonsful of brandy.

About 5 o'clock that evening Mr. Brown came to the office of the doctor with a box. Examination proved it to be cyanide of potash.

"'This is a deadly poison,' I exclaimed," said Dr. McKelvey. "It ought to be destroyed."

The box was marked "Cyanide of Potash." The witness said that the box was obtained after a severe struggle with Mr. Brown.

"There was [illegible] poison in that [illegible]," said the doctor. "About 2:30 next day I got a telephone message that Mr. Brown was dying. When I reached the house the recorder was nearly dead.

"We suspected after his death something was wrong. I said to the coroner later in the day that I believed he had taken some poison, and if so, he had taken it himself."

Asked if he knew when the poison was used, Dr. McKelvey said he did not.

Asked if he knew the cause of death, Dr. McKelvey said he did not. "I must go back of the heart failure. Maybe he took some poison as a sleeping potion."

Adjourned until July 25.

THE DYING PONTIFF.

Physicians' Bulletin Says "He Is No Worse"—He Blesses All Who Pray for Him.

Rome, July 18.—"I cannot say the pope is better, but he is no worse." In these words Dr. Lapponi summed up last evening the pontiff's condition at the end of the second week of his illness, in all the varying periods of which the pontiff has scarcely had a quieter day than yesterday, with the result that last night's official bulletin declared him to be a little less depressed.

After the visit of the physicians the pope received Cardinal Rampolla, who remained in the sick room only a few minutes. He again gave the pontiff a full report of the prayers offered in his behalf all over the world. His holiness, raising both hands, said: "I bless all those who pray to God for me."

No Explanation Requested.

Washington, July 18.—It is learned at the state department that there have been no representations from the British government touching the ownership of any of the small islands in the south of the Philippine archipelago and adjacent to the coast of Borneo. Nor is anything known here of recent naval operations in that corner of the world, although the fact is recalled that about a year ago one of the American gunboats cruising in those waters did visit some of the native chieftains on the smaller keys and asserted American sovereignty.

Blew the Top of His Head Off.

Columbia City, Ind., July 18.—Joseph Clark, president of the school board and formerly treasurer of Whitley county, blew off his head yesterday with a rifle. Ill health and financial trouble was the cause.

Narrowly Escaped Lynching.

Troy, N. Y., July 18.—A man who gave his name as Peter Gillette, aged 28 years, caused great excitement in Whitehall yesterday and almost provoked a lynching. He was arrested for a criminal assault upon Ethel Chapman, aged 16 years, who he met about two miles east of the village, where she was picking berries. He made his escape after the attack, but the farmers in the vicinity organized a band and captured him as he was entering the village. A large crowd gathered, but the authorities succeeded in putting Gilette in the county jail.

BRIBERY CHARGED

George W. Beaver, an ex-Postal Official Is Wanted.

Many Matters Affecting His Administration as Chief of Division of Salaries in Postoffice Department Have Been Probed Into by Inspectors.

New York, July 18.—A bench warrant was issued Friday by Judge Thomas in the United States circuit court at Brooklyn for the arrest of George W. Beavers, formerly chief of the division of salaries in the postoffice department, on an indictment found by the federal grand jury, which charges him with accepting a bribe of $840. It is understood that payments to Beavers were traced back to the purchase by the government of the Brandt-Dent cash registering machine. The postoffice inspectors found that Beavers had a large account in the Nassau Trust Co., Brooklyn, and are said to have discovered that checks deposited there had been given by ex-Congressman Driggs.

Washington, July 18.—The issuance of a bench warrant for the arrest of George W. Beavers, the former chief of the division of salaries and allowances of the postoffice department, is the culmination of an investigation that has been in progress at intervals since his sudden resignation from office last spring. A number of matters affecting his administration have been probed into, one of the first results of which was the cancellation of 3,046 promotions that had been passed on by him, to take effect at postoffices throughout the country during the present fiscal year.

Chief Postoffice Inspector Cochran has made several mysterious trips to New York in connection with the case and Inspector Walter S. Mayer, of Chicago, who worked up the case against August W. Machen, the former head of the free delivery service, has figured conspicuously in obtaining the evidence placed in possession of the district attorney at Brooklyn.

The authorities are now searching for Mr. Beavers to place him under arrest. His present whereabouts are unknown.

TRADE REVIEW.

Conditions Continue Satisfactory — Crops Doing Well—Railroad Traffic Heavy — Uncertainty Prevails in Manufacture of Cotton Goods.

New York, July 18.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Conditions continue satisfactory outside the region of speculation, many reports indicating further improvement. During recent months the disturbing factors have been labor controversies and weather conditions, but each week has brought better things in these two respects until the outlook contains much that is encouraging. Crops are making rapid progress and the army of unemployed is diminishing. Railway traffic is heavy, earnings thus far reported for July exceeding last year's by 13.6 per cent.

Retail trade in seasonable merchandise is fully up to the average and there is less than the customary midsummer quiet among wholesalers, while the preparations of jobbers and manufacturers indicate confidence in a large fall business.

Unsettled conditions still exist in forge and foundry pig iron markets, while Bessemer iron is only barely steady. The chief difficulty appears to be the inclination of prospective purchasers to wait for the lowest possible quotations.

Structural steel begins to reflect the settlement of labor troubles in the building trades, but several important undertakings have been postponed until next year. Merchant steel and pipe are in better demand. Steel rails are sold well into 1904, and other railway equipment is still one of the best features in the industry.

It is a season of uncertainty in the manufacture of cotton goods, and nothing in the nature of improvement can be expected until the artificial position of the raw material is radically altered. Supplies of cotton goods in first hands are low and there is no effort to make spot sales. Mills are steadily curtailing production both here and abroad.

Western jobbers are operating freely in the Boston footwear market, both on contracts for spring goods and suppiementary fall orders. Eastern wholesalers are also purchasing additional fall supplies, and New England factories are fully occupied.

Failures this week were 213 in the United States, against 213 last year, and 16 in Canada, compared with 20 a year ago.

Arrest of Counterfeiters.

New York, July 18.—Secret service agents captured a gang of Italian counterfeiters in Brooklyn yesterday after a hard fight, in which revolvers were drawn by both sides and one agent had a narrow escape from death. Five men and two women were arrested. They are all members of the "Society of the Bad Blood," seven of whose members are now awaiting trial on a charge of having murdered Benedetto, whose body was found in a barrel two months ago on the East Side.

A Famous Artist Dies.

London, July 18.—James Abbott McNeill Whistler, the celebrated American artist, died yesterday afternoon at his residence in Chelsea, at the age of 69 years. His death came unexpectedly, although for some time he had been seriously ill. This morning's papers publish elaborate obituary notices, recognizing the distinguished and unique personality of Whistler, whose genius greatly dominated European art. While admitting that it is for posterity to decide his exact position as a painter, it is generally conceded that he was a consummate etcher

The Value of Technical Schools

By DR. FRANK W. GUNSAULUS,
President of Armour Institute.

IT IS doubtful if even the most far-sighted of our statesmen have overestimated the fact that the position of America in the markets of the world is not a matter so much of wheat as of steel. Agricultural America is always likely to dominate over agricultural Germany, and France, and England.

Now, take these nations in the same order, and their importance to us as competitors for the marketing of a national product are first, second, and third, not so much because of the relation of either one of them to the harvests from the soil, as because of their relation to what may be made by the investment of educated brains through trained hands, which deal with the single fact of iron ore. This solitary fact called iron ore has been chosen from the company of many others, not because it is unlike them. It is the one upon which the American artisan is most likely to manifest his character.

Technical education has everywhere touched some substance or set of forces and almost magically made its importance transcendent. For example, it is technical education which has entered the slaughter house and oil refineries and made the by-products of more importance as to proportional profit than anything else. The chemical engineer comes to the mining engineer of to-day and helps him to find in the dump as valuable a gold mine as was the original discovery.

THE WASTES OF YESTERDAY ARE ALL TO BE REDEEMED TO-MORROW BY A FINER HAND, RULED AND GUIDED BY A FINER BRAIN.

The foresight, therefore, of 15 years ago which made wise men prophecy that technical education in America would open the most expansive doorway into European and Asiatic markets was true. Prediction has been made a brilliant reality. The American workman in the shop is to-day either a technically educated man, or he does his work under the well ascertained methods and leadership which modern technical education furnishes.

Our wheat has had its market of unique size not so much because it was better wheat as because there was more of it, and the world of the east was hungry. Take a piece of iron and let a trained American make it into steel, and out of that let him make the best thing he can by the investment of his educated power, and the result is something that does not make its way so much by quantity as by quality.

Education is that training which enables a man to produce quality. Quality means less of the thing and more thinking in the product. Wheat cannot be improved so much by educating the wheat producer as steel, for example, can be improved and the man himself improved by adding ideas to it, or multiplying it by ideas.

England lost her place and the English workman lost his position in the world because manual training and engineering education have been of less importance to that country than wars in South Africa. If the attention paid to intrenching the church and toryism through an absurd system of priestly education had been paid to the training of English brains and English hands in technical pursuits, the case of England in the markets of the world would have been different.

In the long run, the best will be both the cheapest and the easiest to sell. France has passed England in the race. Germany has passed France. The invasion of Europe by American manufactures is the invasion of uneducated and untrained territory by the technically equipped.

Psychology a Cure for Divorce

By MISS ADA C. SWEET,
Dean of Ruskin University.

LEARN to know your husband or the man whom you intend to make your husband, is the motto which we would seek to have the women of this country adopt. Psychology has its place in the domestic economy, and the study of this branch of learning should be made a prominent feature of every young woman's education. Many, if not the majority, of divorces are the result of the failure of women to understand their husbands. They do not know how to cater to their wants or understand their moods. They are out of sympathy with them and the husbands, understanding that, seek solace and comfort elsewhere. Psychological studies would help to do away with these deplorable conditions. If the course of study we propose to establish at Ruskin university were taught in women's institutions generally, we believe that it would tend to decrease the number of divorces, and there would not be 500,000 divorces granted every year. A new kind of "new woman" is needed, one who has been taught how to be a wife and mother. What is needed to-day is a decrease in the number of business women as well as the number of divorces and an increase in the women who will be model wives instead of intellectual giants. Special courses in "housewifery" should be taught similar in many respects to the one taught in French schools. Domestic arts, the study of the properties of various foods, and their scientific value, domestic bookkeeping and cookery should be taught, and the study of stenography and other subjects that tend to lead a woman into a business career should be discouraged. And when our young women are educated along these lines divorces will rapidly decrease.

Public High Schools in the West

By PROF. ANDREW S. DRAPER,
President of the University of Illinois.

ONE great side to the marvelous civilization of the west, and one which is either forgotten or ignored, is the exalted place which the public high school and its feeder, the common school, hold in the esteem and love of the people of that great section. The east has little conception of the feeling. The public high school building is the most prominent of buildings in a western village or city. In all moderation it may be said that a westerner has a far more general and a warmer feeling towards all kinds of educational work than is the case in the east.

The east cannot appreciate the feelings of the western people for their schools, for the reason that in the east the good old "common school" has ceased to be what it once was, "common" to all, and is not now good enough for the eastern man of wealth, and he educates his children elsewhere. It is not so in the west. There is no public school question there. The masses of the people of the west support the public high school. The educational sentiment of the west leads also to the willing support of the colleges and universities for all the people. The universities of the west are the pride of the masses.

MANY BROKEN HEADS.

Two Battles Between Chicago Blue-coats and Friends of Strikers.

Chicago, July 16.—Desperate fighting between the police and the strikers of the Kellogg Switchboard Co. took place Wednesday afternoon and evening, when the company attempted to send freight to some of the railroad depots. In one instance the police opened fire with revolvers, and although the fusillade was continued for several minutes nobody was injured. Later there was a fight in which no revolvers were used, and the police laid out a number of men, some of whom were left in the street until their friends came back and picked them up.

The first fight occurred when a truck loaded with freight escorted by police bound for the Burlington depot was passing an unfinished building at the corner of Harrison and Peoria streets. A howling mob of a thousand men and boys was following close upon the police and pelting them with stones and sticks. Teamsters who sympathized with the strikers managed to get their wagons into the way of the Kellogg Co.'s wagon as it reached Peoria street and occasioned a blockade. The police were endeavoring to clear the street when the workmen on the unfinished building showered them with bricks. The officers drew their revolvers and fired at the workmen, who fled to the interior of the building.

The second fight occurred when the police were escorting a wagon load of freight to the warehouse of the Terminal Transfer Co. at Ogden avenue and Twelfth street. A mob fully 3,000 strong followed the wagon and although the police were outnumbered one hundred to one, they took the wagon safely to the depot. The mob had greatly increased by the time the wagon was ready to make the return trip. The mob pelted them with stones and hurled vile epithets at them. The climax came at Congress street and Ogden avenue, when a private watchman who had no particular call to mix in the trouble on either side, fired at one of the mob.

The shot went wild, but it inflamed the mob to the highest degree and they charged down on the police. The latter were waiting for the crowd and when it arrived the officers went at it with fists and clubs.

dozen men with broken heads were left lying in the streets where they had been knocked by the officers. Twenty arrests were made.

Chicago, July 18.—The riotous conduct of the strikers of the Kellogg Switchboard Co. and their sympathizers during the last four days impelled Mayor Harrison to issue a proclamation last night urging all people to remain away from the scene of the trouble and calling upon the rioters to cease from their work. The proclamation insists that all people must keep off the streets near to and refrain from gathering in crowds around the Kellogg plant, and declares that all persons who do this, or in any other way interfere with the police by the forming of blockades, would promptly be arrested and punished.

A White Man Is Lynched.

Maysville, Ky., July 16.—Enraged at the tardiness of the courts, a mob broke into the Flemingsburg jail yesterday and hanged William Thacker, a white man, who had been given a life sentence for the murder of John Gordon two years ago. Thacker in a quarrel with Gordon, at Foxport, shot and killed him and then sat on the body, Winchester in hand, while he smoked his pipe and dared any one to attempt to arrest him. At the time Thacker escaped, but was later arrested and lodged in jail at Flemingsburg. He was given two trials and finally got a life sentence.

Panic on a Steamboat.

Clayton, N. Y., July 16.—The steamer St. Lawrence, of the Thousand Islands Steamboat Co., broke her walking beam while running at full speed in mid-channel yesterday and before the engine could be stopped smashed her cylinder and pounded to pieces much of her valuable machinery. In the excitement several women attempted to jump overboard. Michael Dietzo, assistant engineer, jumped in among the flying pieces of steel and machinery to the throttle and stopped the pounding of the machinery. The vessel was beached.

Mrs. Blaine Dies.

Augusta, Me., July 16.—Mrs. James G. Blaine died at the Blaine homestead Wednesday. Mrs. Blaine was 76 years of age. From Washington, a short time ago, she came to the old family residence here. She was in an enfeebled condition and had been under almost constant medical attention since.

Thirteen Spoons Sell for $24,500.

London, July 17.—Thirteen silver apostle spoons with figures of Christ and the 12 apostles upon them were auctioned at London yesterday. They brought the record price of $24,500. The spoons were dated 1536 and constitute the earliest complete set known.

Dr. Kountz Is Sentenced.

Pittsburg, July 16.—Dr. Walter P. Kountz, convicted recently of killing John E. Walsh, a wealthy contractor, of this city, while the latter was walking on the street with Mrs. Kountz, was yesterday sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

A Break in Strikers' Ranks.

Philadelphia, July 16.—The first break in the strike of the textile workers in the Kensington district occurred yesterday when 75 weavers returned to work at the mills of F. A. Bachman & Co., who operate two of the largest plants in that section. At the Folwell mill 674 hands are said to have reported for duty. The manufacturers express their determination to grant no concessions and it is likely that the strike will continue until the end of summer. The strike leaders claim the few defections which have occurred are not important.

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION.

Extra Session of Congress to be Called —President Roosevelt Desires Early Action Along Lines of His Recent Message and Speeches.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 17.—President Roosevelt is deeply interested in the financial legislation. As a student of affairs he had noted for a long time the necessity of financial legislation of a remedial character and yesterday he expressed to Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, his desire that early action upon the subject should be taken by congress along the lines of his recent message and speeches. Indeed, it can be said he hopes action will be initiated at the extra session of congress which he will call on Monday, November 9.

Senator Lodge arrived here Thursday morning and passed the day with the president at Sagamore Hill. He is a member of the Alaskan boundary commission, which is to begin its sessions in London in September. Before sailing for England today he came to Oyster Bay to consider with the president, among other things, the work of the commission.

Before his departure Senator Lodge gave to the press a statement concerning his conference with the president. In this statement the president's hopes regarding financial legislation are reflected.

"Yes," the senator continued, in response to an inquiry whether he had discussed with President Roosevelt the proposed extra session of congress, "we considered it at some length.

"You know, of course, that an extra session is to be called to meet on Monday, November 9, immediately following the fall elections. The session will be called primarily for the purpose of enacting legislation approving the Cuban treaty which was ratified by the senate last spring. The president hopes, however, as I do, that we shall be able to take up for early consideration financial legislation along the lines of his message and speeches since he became president. In this legislation the president takes the deepest interest."

COAL MINERS' GRIEVANCES.

Conciliation Board Renders Decisions on Three Complaints.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 17.—The first decisions of the conciliation board which relate to some of the grievances in the Hazleton district were made public Thursday. Only three of the 19 grievances submitted by President Dettrey, of that district, were decided. Two favor the contention of the men and one is against them. As to the grievances of the driver boys employed by Markle & Co., who complained that they were obliged to work during the dinner hour without extra pay, the conciliation board decided that the boys must be paid overtime for such work, but that the boys must report for work at the same hours and perform the same duties as they did before April, 1902.

In the complaint of the miners employed by Coxe Bros. & Co. that the company had refused to accept the check weighmen selected by the miners, the board decided that the company shall recognize these check weighmen, no matter whether they are selected from among the employes or from another mine, the company to collect from the miners sufficient to pay said check weighmen.

The complaint of the Coxe Bros.' employes that the company raised the price of coal for domestic use was decided against the men, the board deciding that it had no power to fix the price of coal to the employes or to act on such a grievance.

WITH A REVOLVER.

A Defaulter Committed Suicide in a New Hampshire Hotel.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 17.—A man who registered as G. B. Osborne, of New York City, committed suicide by shooting at the Hotel Rockingham yesterday. Osborne arrived here Wednesday night and after dinner wrote several letters to New York people. Thursday employes of the hotel heard a shot in the room and forced the door, which was locked and barricaded with chairs. The man lived about half an hour after the shooting.

New York, July 17.—George B. Osborne was the manager of the claims department of the Commercial Assurance and Palatine insurance companies, by which he had been employed for 16 years. He left on a vacation at the request of the general manager, who desired an expert examination of the books of Osborne's department. This examination showed Osborne to be a defaulter and he must have known his defalcation had been discovered. He leaves a wife, daughter and son.

Tarred and Feathered.

Ithaca, N. Y., July 17.—The citizens of Peruville, a village ten miles from here, gave a coat of tar and feathers yesterday to Theodore Underwood, who a year ago was tried in Ithaca for the murder of J. F. Teeter. It is reported that Underwood drove his wife and three children from home three days ago and they have since lived with neighbors. It is said Mrs. Underwood attempted to return to her home, but was again driven away. A crowd assembled, lighted a bonfire in the road, heated a pot of tar and sent a posse for the offender. He was stripped, smothered with tar and feathers and sent home.

Four Lives Lost in Fire.

Bonner Springs, Kan., July 17.—Four persons lost their lives in a fire Thursday morning which destroyed Bonner Springs sanitarium. The dead are: Capt. J. A. McClure, Junction City, a former attorney for the Union Pacific railroad; Miss Janie Campbell, patient, Iola, Kan.; Mrs. A. A. Cook, patient, Lawrence, Kan.; Dr. A. E. Rogers, steward. Dr. Rogers lost his life in an attempt to save a woman patient. There were 30 inmates in the building, but all escaped except the four above named. Loss $20,000.

The real heroines of every day are in our homes. Frequently, however, it is a mistaken and useless heroism.

Women seem to listen to every call of duty except the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. How much harder the daily tasks become when some derangement of the female organs makes every movement painful and keeps the nervous system unstrung? Irritability takes the place of happiness and amiability; and weakness and suffering takes the place of health and strength. As long as they can drag themselves around, women continue to work and perform their household duties. They have been led to believe that suffering is necessary because they are women. What a mistake!

The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will banish pain and restore happiness. Don't resort to strong stimulants or narcotics when this great strengthening, healing remedy for women is always within reach.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. No man will see your letter. She can surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. She has helped hundreds of thousands of women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

For proof read the symptoms, suffering and cure recited in the following letters:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to express to you the great benefit I have derived from your advice and the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My trouble was female weakness in its worst form and I was in a very bad condition. I could not perform my household duties, my back ached, I was extremely nervous, and I could not eat or sleep, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. My husband spent hundreds of dollars to get me well, and all the medicine that the doctors prescribed failed to do me any good; I resorted to an operation which the physician said was necessary to restore me to health, but I suffered more after it than I did before; I had hemorrhages of the womb that nothing could seem to stop.

"I noticed one of your advertisements and wrote you for advice, I received your reply and carefully followed all instructions. I immediately began to get stronger, and in two weeks was about the house. I took eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and continued following your advice, and to-day I am a well woman. Your remedies and help are a Godsend to suffering women, and I cannot find words to thank you for what you have done for me."—MRS. LOTTIE V. NAYLOR, 1328 N. J. Ave., N.W., Washington, D. C.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

"I was suffering with falling of the womb and could hardly drag about, but after taking five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was completely cured. I am now a well woman and able to do all my work.

"I think your medicine one of the best remedies in the world."—MRS. J. M. LEE, 141 Lyndal St., Newcastle, Pa.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done a great deal for me. I suffered so much from falling of the womb and all the troubles connected with it. I doctored for years with doctors and other remedies but received only temporary relief.

"I began taking your medicine, and had not taken it long before I was feeling better. My husband said that I should keep right on taking it as long as it gave me relief from my suffering, as I could not expect to be cured by one or two bottles. I did so and am now able to be on my feet and work hard all day, and go to bed and rest at night. Thanks to your Vegetable Compound I am certainly grateful for the relief it gave me. It is the mother's great friend. I would not be without it in my house, for when I feel tired or out of sorts I take a few doses and feel all right.

"I would recommend your medicine to all tired mothers, and especially to those suffering as I was."—MRS. R. F. CHAMBERS, Bennet, Neb.

The Future Woman.

Mr. Mangasarian says the woman of the future will be "more creative and inquisitive and less passive and submissive" than is the woman of today. There are married men, says the Chicago Record-Herald, who will pity the man of the future if Mr. Mangasarian is right concerning the inquisitive part of it.

George W. Beavers, in the post-office scandal, has been indicted and it looks as though the end had been reached.

Even the slump in Wall Street has not affected the prosperity of the nation and the last hope of the democrats is thus destroyed.

It begins to look as though Oyster Bay and Buzzard's Bay were two bays with but a single mind—on the race suicide question.

Senator Platt of New York favors Chicago for the next Republican convention. For Chicago to capture to big event would make St. Louis cry aloud.

There are a good many people who will suspect that Senator Platt of New York was joking when he suggested Senator Aldrich for vice-President.

Speculation as to the vice-presidential candidate continues to furnish material for a lot of hot weather stories which harm no one and earn space for the newspaper boys.

The highest wage in the world is $78.30 a minute for a day of six hours. It is received by the Czar of Russia and it is doubtful if many people would care to thread his way amid plots and dynamite bombs even for the wage.

Speaker-to-be Cannon has gone to New England, the president has pronounced in favor of financial legislation and it is probable that the Republicans in the next Congress will get together on a beneficial measure with their usual harmony and good sense.

Representative Landis has a new remedy for lynching. He would have every State legislature pass a law making a sheriff from whose custody a prisoner is taken, lose his position and become ineligible to any other. He would further make the county in which the outrage is committed liable to damages of from $1,500 to $2,500 to be forfeited to the heirs of the lynched.

Just About Bedtime.

Take a Little Riser—it will cure constipation biliousness and liver troubles. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are different from other pills. They do not gripe and break down the mucous membranes of the stomach, liver and bowels, but cure by gently arousing the secretions and giving strength to these organs. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

Newspaper "Roasts."

UNPROFESSIONAL, UNPROFITABLE AND SHOULD BE DISCOURAGED.

By Daniel Wheston, editor Franklin (Minn.) Tribune.

A Herbert Spencer can outline a code of moral and ethical conduct based on the laws of nature that all mankind can follow with impunity, but he who would attempt to compile a complete code of ethics for the newspaper profession applicable to all localities will fail in his undertaking, as the writers of the many excellent articles along this line in previous issues of The American Press have intimated, and truthfully, that the policy of a newspaper, and a country newspaper especially, is necessarily governed by environment. Yet there are rules of conduct that have a worldwide application—verities governing the profession that are as broad as civilization itself—and, failing to observe this code, no newspaper man can hope to reach a dizzy height in the profession.

First among the sins of newspaper men, and a failing common among country editors, are the petty quarrels among themselves. If there is anything that stifles the country newspaper and warps the judgment of its editor more than quarreling with a contemporary I have failed to observe accurately. But I am positive that there is not. It seems to me that these little "scraps" among editors are purely a disregard for the dignity of their calling and a gross violation of the ethics of the profession, if we are to place journalism in the catagory of the professions, and to-day more than at any stage of the world's progress is the newspaper given a place among the callings of dignity.

Let us for one moment imagine two lawyers, two doctors or two merchants engaged in a foolish little war of words and branding each other with the appellations of "grafter," "shyster," etc., as some editors are continually doing. How long would their supply of dignity last, and how long would the public repose in them the dignity due all men engaged in honorable callings? Whenever I pick up an exchange and see a "roast" directed at some other member of the craft I at once conclude that here is an editor who is wasting his energy on the desert air and making a consummate ass of himself besides. And isn't this about what the average person thinks about it?

The same principle, in my opinion, applies to attacks on private citizens or even those in public station. Just as soon as a man becomes an apologist he is surrendering, and just as soon as a man starts to pursue the course of malicious "roasts" just as sure is his paper in a state of decadence. No newspaper can be in a healthy condition when its editor is in an unhealthy frame of mind, and an editor in a healthy frane of mind is an editor who is broad minded, optimistic, generous, fearless and free from malice. Not alone are out and out "roasts" to be discouraged, but all indiscreet hints and jabs of any description. Little sarcams and semihumorous squibs directed at individuals may appeal to the vulgar sensibilities of a certain element, but that element of right thinking people to whom the newspaper that wishes to attain any standing must devote itself, as a rule, has no time for matter of this nature.

Newspaper men of a combative nature often charge their brethern of more conservative views with weakness and a cringing fear of expressing themselves lest they suffer a pecuniary loss, and rarely are these charges true. Instead the latter class have a deep sense of the duty they owe the public and their profession. There are few editors in this land who will speak out fearlessly and honestly when matters of grave public concern demand it. And when they do speak their utterances fall with far heavier weight than those who are continually harping on the wrongs of society and jabbing at public men and private individuals.

There is a something inexplicably grand in the feeling that you are laboring in a community where you have the good will of all—not alone your patrons, but your brothers in the calling. Evolution in its onward march has not left the newspaper by the wayside, but has on the other hand, placed it in front of the caravan of progress, and no editor need flatter himself that anything but fair, impartial utterances, constant vigilance in working for the best interests of those about him and kindiy words for those in his calling will meet with lasting success.—American Press.

Snake Story Containing More Imagination Than Veracity.

The following communication has been received from Sunville and indicates that the moral atmosphere of that sedate settlement needs purification,

"SUNVILLE, June. 22—(Secial.)—One day last week R. L. Hoover, while skidding logs, put the chain around what he supposed to be a small hemlock log. The chain was securely fastened when, to his surprise and consternation, he found that he had captured a huge black snake, which, by this time, had become aroused, and objecting to that kind of a necktie, became enraged and had begun to give battle, when the team became frightened and ran away.

"They had not gone far through the undergrowth when the snake threw three coils of its latter end around a small tree, which was near. This sudden halt broke the chain and at the same time dislocated the spinal column of the reptile, which has since been on exibition at Fetterman Cross Road. The tree was almost torn out by its roots, and so firmly had the tree been gripped that the bark was deeply indented, plainly showing the number of coils."—Oil City Derrick.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoes.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoes Remedy with the testimonial of a man whe had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realise that I was well again, or believn it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by L. Taggart, Emporium, Pa.; John E. Smith, Sterling Run, Pa.,

Temperament will be a poor excuse at the judgment.

Cholera Infantum.

This has long been regardep as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, and Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle, and a cure is certain. For sale by L. Taggart.

There are no mechanical morals.

Slight injuries often disable a man and couse several days' loss of time and when blood poison develops, sometimes result in the loss of a hand or limb. Chamberlains Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment. When applied to cuts, bruises and burns it causes them to heal quickly and without maturation, and prevents auy danger of blood poison. For sale by L. Taggart.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long." writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandra, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. Taggart's drug store.

A Surgical Operation.

Is always dangerous—do not submit to the surgeon's knife until you have tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It will cure when everything else fails—it has done this in thousands of cases Here is one of them: I suffered from bleeding and protruding piles for twenty years. Was treated by different specialists and used many remedies, but obtained no relief until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Two boxes of this salve cured me eighteen months ago and I have not had a touch of the piles since—H. A. Tisdale, Summerton, S. C. To Restrict Drinking.

Burgess Charles H. Pennypacker, of West Chester, is going to muzzle the topers of the little town he rules over. He has the names of 87 habitual drunkards on his little list which has been mailed to every bar-tender in the place. The men on the list are not to be sold any liquor. Most of the saloon keepers approve of the action of the Burgess and will carry out his instructions to the letter. His authority for taking such a course lies in the act of 1854, which provides that any person willfully giving, selling or furnishing liquor to any man of known intemperate habits shall be guilty of a misdemeanor shall be liable to a fine of from $10 to $50 and imprisonment from 10 to 60 days. Any member of the drunkard's family or a magistrate may give notice to the saloon-keeper.

Noted Folks From Elk.

Elk county is noted for many things both good and bad. Every district has its strong and weak points and Elk is no exception. It is a mistake to assume, however, that no good thing can, or ever will, come out of Elk county. A number of famous people had their orgin there. We have it on the authority of Dr. W. J. McKnight, who has made a specialty of pioneer history, that Victoria Woodhull, who once ran for President of the United States on the Woman's Rights ticket, and now the wife of an English nobleman, was the wife of "Buck" Claffiin, a well-known character and hunter of Elk county, Mary Lease, the Kansas politician, to whom is attributed the defeat of John J. Ingalls, was born at Daguscahonda, Elk county. Her father kept the toll-gate at Ridgway along in the 40s, and Mary Ellen, when a little barefoot girl, was often seen by our old inhabitants loitering about the gate. P. P. Bliss, who acquired a world-wide reputation as a singer with the evangelists, Moody and Sankey, was a Caledonia boy.—Brockwayville Record. Cameron county has no objection to crediting Mary Ellen Lease to Elk county, but we will not relinquish our claim to Victoria Woodhull and Tennie C. Claflin—both of whom were born here, as related in the history of Cameron county by Hon. John Brooks, indisputable authority.

We Know Some, Too.

About a year ago, a cranky sort of an old fellow came into this office as mad as a hornet and stopped his paper. We have frequently met him on the street since that time, and it is very amusing to note the look of surprise on the old fellow's face that we are still in existence, regardless of the fact that he "stopped his paper." Some day—and it won't be very long, either—the poor old fellow will turn up his toes. His spiteful old heart will be stilled forever. Neighbors and friends will follow his lifeless clay out to the cemetery and lay him to rest among flowers. An abituary will appear in these columns, telling what a kind, good father, worthy neighbor and beloved citizen he was while the recording angel will overlook for charity's sake and in a very short time he will be forgotten.—North East Breeze.

Just As You See It.

An exchange remarks that many a woman parades up the church aisle in a new style hat and gown followed by her husband in a threadbare coat and last year's hat. Yes, many a man parades down the street with his tank full of beer and a cigar between his teeth, heading for a saloon or a billiard hall, whose wife hasn't had a hat or coat for 16 years and who daily works over the washtub to gain a livelihood for herself and children.

Catarrh of the Stomach.

When the stomach is overloaded; when food is taken into it that fails to digest, it decays and inflames the mucous membrane, exposing the nerves, and causes the glands to secret mucine, instead of the natural juices of digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach. For yeras I suffered with Catarrh of the Stomach, caused by indigeston. Doctors and medicines failed to benefit me until I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.—J. R. THE CHAMPION MIXED PAINT

Sold by L. TAGGART has no superior.

Fourteen years ago I painted my house with these paints and am now, for the first time since, repainting it. H. L. Smith, the painter, says he never knew of a house in better condition for painting after having stood so long.

A gentleman, whose name I will not mention, living in our town, painted his house thirteen years ago, with these paints and he has engaged some paints to repaint, saying that he would have no other.

Dr. Heilman will also testify as to the merits of these paints. County jail painted four years ago. John Lind's two houses painted two years ago and many others, all speak for the virtue and staying qualities of these paints, and is better evidence than any man's word. Look at them; then buy the Champion paints and paint your house and be happy.

Also paper your house with the elegant wall paper at Taggart's and be doubly happy.

REVIVO RESTORES VITALITY
Made a Well Man of Me.
THE GREAT FRENCH REMEDY

produces the above results in 30 days. It acts powerfully and quickly. Cures when all others fail. Young men will regain their lost manhood, and old men will recover their youthful vigor by using REVIVO. It quickly and surely restores Nervousness, Lost Vitality, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, Failing Memory, Wasting Diseases, and all effects of self-abuse or excess and indiscretion, which unfits one for study, business or marriage. It not only cures by starting at the seat of disease, but is a great nerve tonic and blood builder, bringing back the pink glow to pale cheeks and restoring the fire of youth. It wards off Insanity and Consumption. Insist on having REVIVO, no other. It can be carried in vest pocket. By mail, $1.00 per package, or six for $5.00, with a positive written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Book and advise free. Address

Mrs. U. A. Palmer and daughter Miss Fay, also Walter Palmer, have returned from Hartford City, Ind, to remain here we are informed. Their many friends welcome them back. Mr. Palmer will remain in the West, being under a term contract.

Our old friend C. C. Fay, hale and hearty in his 78th year and looking as young as he died 20 years ago, was a pleasant PRESS visitor. Mr. Fay is one of the few old-timers left and is full of interesting experiences in Emporium in the early days.

Edward Murry, you no doubt have noticed, has been sporting his best Sunday clothes this week. We thought perhaps he intended going to Buffalo to attend the wedding of his brother, but Ed. promptly informed us that they had a handsome new girl at his home, last Saturday—no time for weddings.

Now is the time to buy your clothing and the place is at N. Seger's, the old reliable dealer.

THIS COSTS YOU NOTHING.

L. Taggart Will Refund Your Money If Mi-o-na Does not Cure Dyspepsia and Increase Flesh.

There are hundreds of people in Emporium when they read in the PRESS that L. Taggart is selling Mi-o-na under a guarantee to refund the money, in case it did not cure indigestion and increase weight.

The remarkable preparation is a true flesh-forming food, that builds up good, healthy, solid tissues, and makes thinness and scrawniness a thing of the past.

It tones up the digestive organs, and will cure the wort case of indigestion, headache, dizziness, or the depressed, weak condition that afflicts nearly everyone who suffers with stomach trouble. Miona does not simply relieve; it does lasting good.

In 98 out of every 100 cases where Mi-o-na is used, the result is a restoration of perfect harmony between height and weight and an absolute and permanent cure of all stomach troubles.

There are to-day hundreds in Emporium who are recommending Mi-o-na because it cured them. A few months ago they were thin and could eat nothing without fear of stomach trouble. Since using Mi-o-na they have made noticeable gain in flesh, can eat what they want, and when they want, without fear of suffering.

Bemember that you risk nothing in buying Mi o-na. If it gives you the desired effect the cost is trifling, if it fails L. Taggart will pay for the remedy himself.

THE PROCRASTINATOR.

Serene I fold my hands and wait
And hope that wind or tide or sea
Some day may be induced by Fate
To bring some good thing here to me.

I put off work, I make delays,
For what's the use of eager haste;
The man who labors all his days
Lets much sweet leisure go to waste.

I sit and dream day after day
Of things that might be brought to me
If Fortune turned a certain way
To put me next with Destiny.

What matter if I sit alone
And hope to reap rich crops galore
From fields that I have never sown?
Have such things not been done before?

I know the singing brook may not
Sit still and yet keep getting on;
But work's a bore, and who knows what
May come before to-morrow's dawn?

The stars come nightly to the sky,
The tidal wave unto the sea;
Why may not something, then, if I
Keep right on waiting, come to me?

"Yes, sir," answered the boy, straightening up to attention. Then, scrupulously exchanging salutes, the old soldier and the young parted company, and the major returned to receive the reports of the old and new officers of the day. These gentlemen were still with him, Capt. Chew, of the infantry, and the senior first lieutenant for duty with the —th, when Hay came hurrying up the board walk from the direction of the store. For reasons of his own, Webb had sent his orderly to the guardhouse to say to the officers in question that he would await them at his quarters instead of the little building known as the adjutant's office, in which were the offices of the commander, the record room in which were placed the desks of the sergeant major and his three clerks, and the sleeping rooms of the special duty soldiers. It had happened more than once in the past that garrison stories of matters not supposed to be known outside the office had been traced back to that desk room, and now Webb's questions of his old officer of the day, and his instructions to the new, were not things he cared to have bruited about the post. He was listening intently to the captain's report of the sentries' observations during the night gone by when Hay reached the gate and stopped, not wishing to intrude at such a moment.

"Come in, Mr. Hay," said the commander, cordially. "This all will interest you," and, thus bidden, the trader joined the soldiers three on the veranda, and some of the young people of the garrison, setting up their croquet arches on the parade, looked curiously toward the group, and wondered what should keep the old officer of the day so long. Sauntering down the walk, smiling radiantly upon the occupants of the various verandas that she passed, then beaming between times into the face of her smitten escort, her black eyes and white teeth flashing in the rare sunshine, Nanette Flower was gradually nearing the major's quarters. She was barely 20 yards away when, in obedience to some word of the major, Mr. Hay held forth two white packages that, even at that distance, could be recognized, so far as the outer covering was concerned, as official envelopes. She was too far away, perhaps, to hear what was said.

"It seems," began Webb, to his officers, as he mechanically opened the first packet, "that Field took fire at Wilkins' growls about the bother of keeping his funds, so the youngster stowed his money with Hay. He insisted on turning over everything before he left, so I receipted to him. Let's see," he continued, glancing at the memorandum in his hand. "Three hundred and seventy-two dollars and eighty-five cents post fund, and four hundred belonging to enlisted men. I may as well count it in your presence."

By this time the long, lean fingers had ripped open the package marked four hundred, and were extracting the contents—a sheet of official paper with figures and memoranda, and then a flat package, apparently, of currency. Topmost was a $5 treasury note; bottommost, another of the same denomination. Between them, deftly cut, trimmed and sized, were blank slips of paper to the number of perhaps 30, and the value of not one cent. With paling faces, the officers watched the trembling fingers slash open the second, its flap, as was that of the first envelope, securely gummed—not sealed. A nickel or two and a few dimes slid out before the packet came. It was of like consistency with first, and of about the same value. Webb lifted up his eyes and looked straight into the amazed—almost livid face of the trader.

"My God! Major Webb," cried Hay, aghast and bewildered. "Don't look at me like that! No man on earth has ever accused me of a crime. This means that not only my stable but my safe has been robbed—and there is a traitor within my gates!"

Dr. Tracy, absorbed in contemplation of Miss Flower's radiant face, and in the effort to make his own words eloquent, had no ears for those of others. He never heeded the trader's excited outburst. He only saw her suddenly flinch, suddenly pale, then sway. His ready arm was around her in a twinkling. In a twinkling she twisted free from his undesired clasp.

"Just—my foot turned—a pebble!" she gasped.

But when, all assiduity, Tracy would have seated her on the horse-block and examined the delicate ankle, she refused straightway, and with almost savage emphasis, and with rigid lips, from which all loveliness had fled, bade him lead her home, where, despite protest and appeal, personal and professional, she dismissed him curtly.

CHAPTER VI.

Ray's gallant half hundred, as has been said, took the route for the north at break of day. Before them spread the open prairie, apparently level and unbroken for full five miles to the front and either flank, the distant slopes and ridges bounding the level expanse growing more distinct with every moment, and presently lighting up in exulting radiance in response to the rosy blushes of the eastward sky. Scorning the dusty stage road, the troop commander pointed to a distant height just visible against the northward horizon, bade the leading guide march straight on that; then gave the order, "Right by twos," that he might the more readily note the gait and condition of every horse and the bearing and equipment of his rider. There was still time to weed out the weaklings of either class should any such there be. Riding slowly along the left flank, one after another, he carefully scanned every man and mount in his little detachment, then, at quicker pace, passed around to the eastward side of the column, and as critically, carefully studied them from that point of view. A light of quiet satisfaction shone in his fine, dark eyes, as he finished, for, next to his wife and children, that troop was Ray's supreme delight. The preliminary look-over by lantern light had been all sufficient. This later inspection on the move revealed not a steed amiss, not an item of equipment either misplaced or lacking.

As has been said, Ray's senior subaltern was on detached service. His junior, Mr. Clayton, had joined but the year before, and this threw Mr. Field in command of the leading platoon and to the side of the leading guide. Now, as the senior officer took the head of column and Mr. Clayton fell back to the rear, the silence of the first mile of march was broken and, though sitting erect in saddle and forbidden to lounge or "slouch," the troop began its morning interchange of chaff and comment. Every mother's son of them rejoiced to be once more afield with a chance of stirring work ahead.

"It's time to throw out our advance, Field," said Ray, in kindly, cordial tone, as he scanned the low divide still some miles ahead and reined in beside the stern-faced young soldier. "Send Sergeant Scott forward with three men and the same number on each flank—corporals in charge."

He had more than liked Webb's adjutant. He had been his stanchest friend and supporter among the troop and company commanders, and was eager to befriend him now. He had expressed no wish to have him sent on the hurried move, but well he knew the post commander's reasons and approved his course. Still, now that Field was being removed, for the time at least, from the possibility of an entangling alliance that might prove disastrous, in every way in his power Ray meant to show the mortified, indeed sorely angered, officer that his personal regard for him had suffered no change whatever. If he could succeed in winning Field's confidence it might well be that he could bring him to see that there were good and sufficient grounds for the post commander's action—that for Field's own good, in fact, it was a most desirable move. The soul of loyalty and square-dealing himself, Ray had never for a moment dreamed that anything other than a foolish escapade had occurred—a ride by moonlight, perhaps, demanded of her devotee by a thoughtless, thoroughbred coquette, whose influence over the young fellow was beginning to mar his usefulness, if not indeed his future prospects. Just what to think of Nanette Flower Ray really did not know. Marion, his beloved better half, was his unquestioned authority in all such matters, and it was an uncommon tenet of that young matron never to condemn until she had cause. Instinctively she shrank from what she had seen of Miss Flower, even though her woman's eye rejoiced in the elegance of Miss Flower's abundant toilets; and conscious of her intuitive aversion, she would utter no word that might later prove unjust. Oddly enough, that instinctive aversion was shared by her closest friend and neighbor, Mrs. Blake; but, as yet, the extent of their condemnation had found vent only in the half whimsical, half petulant expression on part of the younger lady—Blake's beautiful wife, "I wish her name weren't—so near like mine," for "Nan" had been her pet name almost from babyhood. Vaguely conscious were they both, these lords of creation, Messrs. Blake and Ray, that the ladies of their love did not approve of Miss Flower, but Ray had ridden forth without ever asking or knowing why, and so, unknowing, was ill prepared to grapple with the problem set before him. It is easier to stem a torrent with a shingle than to convince a lover that his idol is a shrew.

Without a word of reply, Field reined out of column, glanced along the double file of his platoon, nodded a signal "fall out" to Sergeant Scott, and the men nearest him at the front, merely said "advance guard," and then proceeded to choose his corporals and men for flankers. No need to tell Scott what to do! He had been leading scouts in Arizona long ere Field had even dreamed of West Point. In five minutes, riding at easy lope, carbines advanced, three little parties of four troopers each were spreading far out to the front and flank, guarding the little column against the possibility of sudden assault from hidden foe.

And at this moment the situation was grave in the extreme. There had been bad blood and frequent collision between the cattlemen, herders, "hustlers"—especially hustlers and the hunting parties of the Sioux and the Northern Cheyenne, who clung to the Big Horn range and the superb surrounding country with almost passionate love and with jealous tenacity. There had been aggression on both sides, then bloodshed, then attempts on part of frontier sheriffs to arrest accused or suspected red men, and equally determined and banded effort to prevent arrest of accused and identified whites. By due process of law, as administered in the days whereof we write, the Indian was pretty sure to get the worst of every difference, and therefore, preferred, not unnaturally, his own time-honored methods of settlement. In accordance therewith, had they scalped the sheriff's posse that had shot two of their young braves who had availed themselves of a purposely given chance to escape, and then in their undiscriminating zeal, the Sioux had opened fire from ambush on Plodder's hunting parties and the choppers at the wood camp, who defended themselves as best they could, to the end that more men, red and white, were killed. The Indians rallied in force and closed in about Fort Beecher, driving the survivors to shelter within its guarded lines, and then, when Plodder needed every man of his force to keep the foe at respectful distance, so that his bullets could not reach the quarters occupied by the women and children at the post, there reached him by night a runner from the stage station far over to the southeast, on a dry fork of the Powder, saying that the north and southbound stages had taken refuge there, with only ten men, all told, to stand off some 50 warriors, and therefore imploring assistance. Not daring to send a troop, Plodder called for volunteers to bear dispatches to Maj. Webb, at Frayne, and Pat Kennedy, with half a dozen brave lads, had promptly stepped forward. Kennedy had managed to slip through the encircling Sioux by night, and to reach Fort Frayne after a daring and almost desperate ride. Then Ray was ordered forth, first to raise the siege at the stage station, then, either to hold that important relay ranch or go on to reinforce Plodder, as his judgment and the situation might dictate.

He knew enough of the stout adobe walls of the corral on the Dry Fork, and of the grit of the few defenders, to feel reasonably sure that, with ammunition, provisions and water in plenty, they could easily hold out a week if need be against the Sioux, so long as they fought on the defensive and the Indians were not strongly reinforced. He reasoned that Stabber and his people were probably gone to strengthen the attack, and that having an hour's start at least, and riding faster, they would get there somewhat ahead of him. But one of his own old sergeants, a veteran of 20 years in the cavalry, was now stationmaster on the Dry Fork, and all the Sioux from the Platte to Paradise could'nt stampede old Jim Kelly. Many a forced march had Ray made in the past, and well he knew that the surest way to bring his horses into action, strong and sound at the finish, was to move "slow and steady" at the start, to move at the walk until the horses were calm and quiet, was his rule. Then on this bright September day would come the alternating trot and lope, with brief halts to reset saddles; then, later still, the call upon his willing men and mounts for sustained effort, and by sunset he and they could count on riding in, triumphant, to the rescue, even though Stabber himself should seek to bar the way.

And that Stabber meant to watch the road, if not to block it, became evident before the head of the column began the gradual ascent of Moccasin Ridge, from whose sharp crest the little band could take their last look, for the time, at least, at the distant walls of Frayne. Somewhere toward seven-thirty, Corporal Connors' foremost man, far out on the left flank, rising suddenly over a low divide, caught sight of a bonneted warrior bending flat over his excited pony and lashing that nimble, fleet-footed creature to mad gallop in the effort to reach the cover of the projecting point of bluff across the shallow ravine that cut in toward the foothills. Stone, the trooper, lifted his campaign hat on high once, and then lowered his arm to the horizontal, hat in hand, pointing in the direction the darting savage was seen, and thus, without a syllable having been spoken at the front, word was passed in to Ray that one Indian had been sighted far out to the northwest.

"They may try to hold us among the breaks of the Mini Pusa," said he, to his still unreconciled second in command. Field had been civil, respectful, but utterly uncommunicative in his replies to the captain's repeated cordialities. Any attempt to even remotely refer to the causes that led to his being ordered out with the detachment had been met with chilling silence. Now, however, the foe had been seen and could be counted on to resist if his rallied force much exceeded that of the troop, or to annoy it by long-range fire if too weak to risk other encounter. The command halted one moment at the crest to take one long, lingering look at the now far-distant post beyond the Platte; then, swinging again into saddle, moved briskly down into the long, wide hollow between them and the next divide, well nigh three miles across, and as they reached the low ground and traversed its little draining gully, a muttered exclamation "Look there!" from the lips of the first sergeant, called their attention again to the far left front. Stone, the trooper who had reported the first Indian, had turned his horse over to the second man, as had the corporal on that flank, and together they were crouching up along the eastward face of a billowing hillock, while, straight to the front Sergeant Scott, obedient to a signal from his left hand man, was speeding diagonally along the rise to the north, for all three advance troopers had halted and two were cautiously dismounting. Ray watched one moment, with kindling eyes, then turned to his young chief of platoons:

"Take your men, Field, and be ready to support. There's something behind that second ridge!"

CHAPTER VII.

As Webb had predicted, even before nine o'clock, came prompt, spirited response from Laramie, where the colonel had ordered the four troops to prepare for instant march, and had bidden the infantry to be ready for any duty the general might order. From Omaha—department headquarters—almost on the heels of the Laramie wire came cheery word from their gallant chief: "Coming to join you noon train today. Cheyenne 1:30 to-morrow. Your action in sending Ray's troop approved. Hold others in readiness to move at a moment's notice. Wire further news North Platte, Sidney or Cheyenne to meet me."

Everybody, of course, was aware by eight o'clock that Field had gone with Ray, and while no officers presumed to ask if it was because Ray, or Field, had applied for the detail, no woman would have been restrained therefrom by any fear of Webb. Well he realized this fact, and, dodging the first that sought to waylay him on the walk, he had later intrenched himself, as it were, in his office, where Dade, Blake and the old post surgeon had sat with him in solemn conclave while Bill Hay brought his clerk, barkeeper, storekeeper, Pete, the general utility man, and even "Crapaud," the halfbreed, to swear in succession they had no idea who could have tampered with either the safe or the stables. Closely had they been cross-examined; and, going away in turn, they told of the nature of the cross-examination; yet to no one of their number had been made known what had occurred to cause such close questioning. Hay had been forbidden to speak of it, even to his household. The officers-of-the-day were sworn to secrecy. Neither Wilkins nor the acting adjutant was closeted with the council, and neither, therefore, could do more than guess at the facts. Yet that somebody knew, in part at least, the trend of suspicion, was at once apparent to Webb and his councilors when, about nine o'clock, he took Blake and Dade to see those significant "bar shoe" hoof prints. Every one of them had disappeared.

"By jove!" said Webb, "I know now I should have set a sentry with orders to let no man walk or ride about here. See! He's used his foot to smear this—and this—and here again!"

[To Be Continued.]

Too Previous.

When Dr. Sewell, for many years warden of New college, Oxford, was seriously ill, about a year ago, the fellows of the college, and, indeed, all his friends, despaired of his life.

The senior fellow at the time, wishing to have all things in order, wrote to the home secretary for leave to bury the warden in the college chapel.

Before the next college meeting the warden had recovered. He presided at the meeting, and with no little enjoyment read out the home office's letter permitting his own burial.

"It gives me great pleasure," said he, "to congratulate the senior fellow on his admirable promptitude and energy. I cannot, however, truthfully say that I regret that both were wasted."—Puplic Opinion.

HOW TO WEED ONIONS.

Unless One Has the Right Sort of Tools It Is a Task That Tries One's Patience.

"Working onions" is a little harder than talking about it. I found it difficult to find the tools needed, or rather I needed in this section. All hoes had too wide handles, too short and not of proper shape, onions being two to six inches apart. I made what I needed from an old hinge, cut and bent round, as at (a), sharpened from inside and nailed on suitable handle. Another was made from a narrow plow fitted on an old handle, curved and sharpened from inside also; it is shown at (b). A third was made from an old hoe (c), cut two inches wide.

All these were kept sharpened by filing. They are not for deep or rough hoeing. They are used more as scrapes, to be drawn gently across rows. They cut grass and weeds and break the crust. Without these simple tools I do not see how I could have cleaned my crop out, as our little winter weeds set close to the ground were the greatest trouble. Have plowed and hoed three times and feel with one more thorough working my crop will be made.—J. J. Carmichael, in Farm and Home.

THE LADY-BUG FAMILY.

Its Members Are the Fruit Growers' Best Friends and Should Never Be Destroyed.

With their little red wrappers decorated with black polka-dots, the various members of the lady-bug family are gay and attractive members of the insect world. They are always man's friend, and get most of their living by preying on the destructive soft-bodied plant lice, the most common of which is the green aphis, which can commonly be found on house plants and rose bushes. The most striking example of the usefulness of the lady-bug to the horticulturists is seen in the case of Vedalia cardinalis, the bug which was imported from Australia and which saved the citrus trees of California by destroying the cottony-cushioned scale which was devastating the orange and lemon groves. In the study of the grain aphis it was found that a species of lady-bug preyed upon this pest. The former were observed to go down among the roots of the grain in the field in search of the aphides, and to pass the winter along with them in that situation. The larvae of the lady-bug also live principally upon insects which are destructive to garden and field crops. The dainty lady-bug should never be destroyed.—Scientific American.

POTATOMATO PLANT.

It Bears Tomatoes Above and Potatoes Below and Is a Triumph of Grafting Art.

An anomaly in grafting, being a plant which is growing first-class potatoes at the roots and bearing fully developed tomatoes at the stalk, was brought about by Prof. Green, of the Minnesota state school of agriculture, when he cut off the young shoots of a potato vine, making a V-shaped slit in the top, into which he inserted a freshly clipped young tomato plant, bound the joint with straw and supported it by long rods. Nature did the rest.

The tomato drew sustenance from the earth through the roots of the potato, and in return furnished what was required in the way of the action of light and air upon its own leaves to its adopted roots.

The plant is now three months old. On pushing aside the earth several fairly developed potatoes are shown, each a trifle larger than a large hen's egg. From the vines a half-dozen tomatoes are hanging, in different stages of maturity. Several have ripened and the others promise to do so, as well.

The tomato vine loses its identity at the place where the graft was made. There are no leaves at all suggestive of the potato. The vine is fully three feet high.—N. Y. Herald.

Sewage on the Farm.

Because a farmer has all outdoors, the disposal of sewage on the farm is usually a neglected subject. While the pioneer had no need to take thought on this matter, it is a question whose importance increases in direct proportion to the growth of population. Very primitive methods are still in vogue in country and town, and the time will come when the present custom of turning of disease-reeking sewage into water courses will be looked upon as both criminal and suicidal. For the present every farmer should make that provision for house and stable sewage which seems safe and economical. The farmer who always sees wealth on waste products will endeavor to utilize sewage as far as possible for fertilizing purposes.—Rural World.

Common ferns may be gathered in the woods, and packed away in a cool place. They will keep a long time.

OFFICIALLY INDORSED.

Ohio Republicans and Beet Sugar Industry Men Unanimous for Good Roads.

The progress that is being made by the good roads movement is indicated by the action of state legislatures and conventions in favor of road improvement. The action of the recent republican state convention in Ohio in unanimously adopting a strong good roads plank indicates the force and popularity which this movement has acquired in the north. This is the first time such a stand has been taken by Ohio republicans since the birth of the party.

Mr. Charles F. Saylor, special agent of the government for the investigation of the sugar industry, who has traveled through nearly all the northern and western states in the prosecution of his work, recently expressed the results of his observations as follows:

"Probably no other subject of interest to the rural population is receiving more attention throughout the nation than that of road improvement. One of the fundamental needs of society is a ready means of communication. The experiment stations of the country are now engaged in experimental work and actual demonstration with a view to stimulating the public mind and promoting the best and cheapest systems of good road building with local material, state legislatures are enacting better laws, and in some cases the principle of state aid has been adopted. The federal government has established an office of public road inquiries in the department of agriculture. Literature has been prepared and distributed for the education of the people on this subject.

"There is nothing that will work so effectually for good roads as necessity, the mother of invention. When a beet sugar factory is established farmers at once discover the necessity of good roads. Agitation begins, public meetings are held, and every public highway becomes the object of solicitous attention. It is found that the farmer requires at least four horses, and must deliver from two and a half to four tons of beets per load if he is to accomplish the best results in the saving of time and expense. Neighbors talk over road improvement and the idea becomes infectious. A public meeting is called, public roads are discussed, and an organization is effected which goes to work for the improvement of the roads. Among the interesting features of my work of promoting the progress of beet sugar industry, is attendance at these local meetings, at which roads and other subjects pertinent to the needs of these beet-growing districts are considered. Permanent road building is one of the most important matters commonly discussed."

Reports from all sections indicate that the question of road improvement is one of the most popular subjects of discussion in farmers' meetings of all kinds, and state and national aid are being generally indorsed. The farmers are beginning to see that they have not received their share of attention from the national government, and to demand substantial recognition in the way of federal aid and cooperation in the improvement of the rural highways.

THE QUIET FARM LIFE.

There Are But Few Failures, Moral or Financial, Among the Tillers of the Soil.

I would not try to make every boy a farmer, or every girl a farmer's wife, but it does seem to me that we should impress upon the children that, while the opportunities to make great fortunes will not often open to them on the farm, there are less failures among those engaged in our business than any other. When we read eulogies on the captains of industry, who have accumulated fortunes in mining, commerce and manufacturing, we do not hear of the poor, miserable privates who have fallen by the wayside, financial, moral and physical wrecks.

Do not teach the children that life's pathway is strewn with thorns and brambles in all directions. Too much teaching has already gone forth, and the masses are pushing, crushing, surging and jostling against each other, even to madness and destruction. Still, in all this wild rush, we occasionally see individuals who are quietly and gently, with a pleasant word and smile, making their way through the seething mass of humanity, almost without disturbing it, and reaching the desired goal. "As sorrow and weeping may endure for the night, but joy cometh in the morning," so will peace come with earnest, conscientious effort, accompanied with consideration for others.—Carrie L. Dawley, before the New York State Grange.

WILLING TO REPEAT.

Young Hunter Captures Something More Than Game on One of His Expeditions.

On the Kronprinz Wilhelm, one moonlight May night, a young man and a girl were discovered making love. The news of this discovery spread among the passengers, and many a joke was cracked, says the Kansas City Journal. But Senator N. B. Scott, of West Virginia, said in the smoking-room:

"There is nothing to laugh at here. Innocent love-making is natural in the young. This fact was well brought out by an adventure that happened to a friend of mine, years ago, in the mountains of West Virginia.

"The young man was hunting. He came to a lonely cabin, and, being thirsty, he knocked at the door for a drink. The drink was handed to him by a girl so charming that, with a smile, he said:

"'Would you be angry if I should offer you a dollar for a kiss?'

"'No, sir,' the girl answered, with a little blush.

"So my friend took the kiss, and then he gave the maiden the dollar. She balanced it in her hand a moment. She knitted her pretty brows in perplexity.

"'What,' she asked, 'shall I do with all this money?'

"'Why, anything you please, my dear,' said my friend.

"'Then,' she murmured, 'I think I'll give it back to you, and take another kiss.'"

RUINED THE ECHO.

The College Students Had Been Practicing Their Yell and Had Torn Up the Ground.

"What has become of the splendid echo we could hear from yonder bluff last season?" asked the returned guest of the summer hotel landlord, relates Judge.

"Well, I'll tell you. After you left last fall there was a bunch of these here college students come, an' one night they got full of love for Almy Mater, or some other woman, so they said, an' was likewise full o' something else, an' they got out here in front o' the hotel, an' all at once an' all together, they cut loose with the dadblamedest thing about 'Rah, rah, rah' an' a whole lot more to the same effect, an' that there echo just naturally must 'a' give up the ghost an' quit, for the next morning one o' the hired men was over there on the bluff, an' he said the ground was torn up fer a space o' 50 feet square, an' there seemed to have been a turrible struggle. At any rate, we ain't seen nor heard nothin' o' the echo since."

When Water Tastes Good.

This is a Texas story. There was gathered at one of the country towns the usual crowd for the county court, which included the judge, the district attorney, sheriff, clerk, a number of lawyers, and, on this particular occasion, a young army officer. Well, they celebrated to rather a late hour on the first night, and when bedtime came it was found that most of them had to sleep in the one large room called in the west the "school section," because everything in the school section lands in the early days belonged to everybody. About daylight the next morning the district attorney crawled out and found a pitcher of ice water. As he poured it down his throat it fairly hissed. After a long draught he stopped and said: "No d—d sober fool knows how good water tastes."—Washington Post.

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade-Mark.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, has granted a permanent injunction, with costs, against Paul B. Hudson and others, of New York City, restraining them from making or selling a foot powder which the court declares is an imitation and infringement on "Foot-Ease," now so largely advertised and sold over the country. The owner of the trade-mark, "Foot-Ease," is Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., and the decision in this suit upholds his trademark and renders all parties liable who farudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot-Ease" advertising. Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trade-mark rights.

Old-Time Railroad Wreck.

In the early days of the road there was a smash-up and all were badly shaken up. The next morning a burly farmer limped into the superintendent's office and said: "Mr. Superintendent, I came in to see what you were going to give me for shaking me up so yesterday." The superintendent asked how much he thought he ought to have for his injuries. "Well, I think it is worth 50 cents, and I will settle for that." The superintendent replied that it was quite a sum, but as the man seemed honest he would pay him, and he did so, taking his receipt in full. The superintendent said: "I will be liberal with you and give you a pass to take you home." "No, you won't. As long as these pins (slapping his legs) last, I won't go on your darn railroad any more."—National Magazine.

A Good Story.

Frederika, Ia., July 13th.—Mr. A. S. Grover, of this place, tells an interesting story showing how sick people may regain their health if they will only be guided by the experience of others. He says:

"I had a very bad case of Kidney Trouble, which affected my urinary organs so that I had to get up every hour of the night. I could not retain my urine and my feet and limbs begin to bloat up. My weight was quickly running down.

"After I had tried many things in vain, I began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, a medicine which had cured some other very bad cases.

"This remedy has done wonders for me. I have gained eight pounds in two months. The bloat has all gone from my feet and legs, and I don't have to get up at night. I took in all about ten boxes before I was all sound."

Those who suffer as did Mr. Grover can make no mistake in taking Dodd's Kidney Pills, for they are a sure, safe and permanent cure for all Kidney and urinary disorders.

SUFFERING WOMEN

Tired, Nervous, Aching, Trembling, Sleepless, Bloodless---Pe-ru-na Renovates, Regulates, Restores---Many Prominent Women Endorse Pe-ru-na.

AMERICA is the land of nervous women.

The great majority of nervous women are so because they are suffering from some form of female disease.

Mrs. Emma Mitchell, 520 Louisiana street, Indianapolis, Ind., writes:

"Peruna has certainly been a blessing in disguise to me, for when I first began taking it for troubles peculiar to the sex and a generally worn out system, I had little faith.

"For the past five years I have rarely been without pain, but Peruna has changed all this, and in a very short time. I think I had only taken two bottles before I began to recuperate very quickly, and seven bottles made me well. I do not have headache or backache any more, and have some interest in life. I give all credit where it is due, and that is to Peruna."—Emma Mitchell.

By far the greatest number of female troubles are caused directly by catarrh.

They are catarrh of the organ which is affected. These women despair of recovery. Female trouble is so common, so prevalent, that they accept it as almost inevitable. The greatest obstacle in the way of recovery is that they do not understand that it is catarrh which is the source of their illness. In female complaint, ninety-nine cases out of one hundred are nothing but catarrh. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

Chronic invalids who have languished for years on sick beds with some form of female disease begin to improve at once after beginning Dr. Hartman's treatment.

Among the many prominent women who recommend Peruna are:—Belva Lockwood, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Col. Hamilton, of Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. F. E. Warren, wife of U. S. Senator Warren, of Wyoming.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

HAIR GROWTH

Promoted by Shampoos of Cuticura Soap

And Dressings of Cuticura the Great Skin Cure

Purest, Sweetest, Most Effective Remedies for Skin, Scalp and Hair.

This treatment at once stops falling hair, removes crusts, scales and dandruff, destroys hair parasites, soothes irritated, itching surfaces, stimulates the hair follicles, loosens the scalp skin, supplies the roots with energy and nourishment, and makes the hair grow upon a sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp when all else fails.

Millions of women now rely on Cuticura Soap assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings and chafings, for annoying irritations, or too free or offensive perspiration, for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet and nursery.

Cuticura remedies are the standard skin cures and humour remedies of the world. Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, in the severer forms, take Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood. A single set is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp and blood humours, from pimples to scrofula, from infancy to age, when all else fails.

Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), Ointment, 50c., Soap, 25c. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props.

Doan's Kidney Pills make freedom from kidney trouble possible. They carry a kind of medication to the kidneys that brings a bright ray of hope to desperate cases.

Aching backs are eased. Hip, back, and loin pains overcome. Swelling of the limbs and dropsy signs vanish.

LOCK HAVEN, PA.—Mrs. L. W. Ammumen writes: "A few weeks ago I sent for a trial box of Doan's Kidney Pills for myself, and they did all they are said to do. My husband was kicked last fall by a horse and badly hurt—his hip was fractured—and after he recovered he was in such misery that he could hardly walk, and to stoop caused him such distress that he thought he would have to quit work—also, it affected his bladder, and he was unable to make his water without so much distress. I insisted on his getting a box of your pills and trying them, so I went to Mason's Drug Store and got a box. The first box helped him so much that I got the second and also the third, and now he is entirely well."—Mrs. L. W. AMMUMEN, Lock Haven, Pa.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

WILLIAMS.

Benjamin Williams, of Emporium, aged 57, died at the hospital shorty before noon Monday, says Williamsport Bulletin.

KRINER.

Ex-Sheriff John W. Kriner was called to Philadelphia on Monday to attend the funeral of his brother, Reuben Kriner, who was a contractor and builder. He resided in Emporium many years ago and made many friends here. He was a very elegant gentleman.

SEGEE.

The death, from apoplexy, last Tuesday morning, of MR. OLIVER SEGEE, is a terrible shock to his family. He was employed as a driver by Mr. L. K. Huntington and on Monday, the day's work being done, was at the stable taking care of the team, when he suddenly became blind and helpless. His little son, who was with him, alarmed the family, who with the assistance of the neighbors, carried him to his home, where he lingered until Tuesday morning, when the end came. Mr. Segee was a hard working, industrious man—held in high esteem by the community and toward his family was an affectionate husband and father. He is survived by a widow and six children, the youngest of whom is two and-a-half years. His age was 52 years. Impressive funeral services will be held at his late home on Sixth street, Thursday afternoon, by the Rev. O. S. Metzler, of the First Methodist Episcopal Church.

ZIMMITT.

MICHAEL ZIMMITT, aged 63 years, who was fatally injured June 17th, by falling from a scaffold at Frank Shives' new residence, died at his residence on Plank Road Hollow, Tuesday afternoon, after three weeks' intensuffering. All that medical skill and careful nursing could do was cheerfully rendered but all to no avail. His back was broken and all the heretofore industrious citizen and kind husband and parent could do was to patiently await the silent summons. He was conscious almost to the last moment and passed to the other side.

Mr. Zimmitt came to Emporium about 23 years ago and entered the employ of Contractor J. W. Kriner as carpenter and up to the hour of his unfortunate accident, continued in his employ, faithfully fulfilling all work assigned to him. That he should take the fatal step will never be explained, after working on the largest buildings in town and in the most perilous places.

The funeral took place this morning at nine o'clock at St. Mark's Catholic Church and was very largely attended by our citizens, all of whom respected the deceased.

Mr. Zimmitt leaves a wife, four daughters, two sons, two sisters and two brothers to mourn his death, viz: Mrs. Geo. Eckstein, Mrs. Joseph Kinsler, Misses Lizzie and Katie Zimmitt, also Michael, Jr., and Joseph. In addition to the immediate members there are two sisters, Mrs. R. Seger, Emporium, and Mrs. Jos. Meyer, Erie, Pa., also two brothers, who reside in the west.

The PRESS as well as our citizens generally, deeply sympathize with the afflicted family in this hour of terrible sorrow.

A Cowboy Funeral.

Lee Marshall, of San Antonio, Texas, a cowboy employed by the Yonger & James Wild West shows, was killed at DuBois on Tuesday afternoon last while in the act of riding a wild horse. The horse was a very vicious animal and it reared and fell backward on the rider, the horn of the saddle striking him in the stomach and injuring him so seriously that he died some two hours afterward. The remains were brought to Ridgway and placed in the hands of Dearolph, Warney & Co., for burial. A fine casket was purchased and about fifty dollars' worth of flowers to give the poor man a nice funeral. After the show in the afternoon, the show people turned out en masse and marched to the undertaking rooms of Deorolph, Warney & Co., and then followed the remains to Pine Grove Cemetery, where a very nice funeral was conducted by Rev. E. DeGeller, D. D., who himself was a resident of Texas for many years. After the regular burial service, Dr. DeGellar made a very nice address, in which he spoke of the good traits of the cowboys of the wild west. The deceased was not married and was but twenty-seven years old. Every effort was made to find the parents of the young man by telegraph, but no answer came and so he was buried here. The remains were nicely embalmed, and his relatives can lift the remains and take them home later if they desire to do so. The liberality and kindness with which the proprietors of the show provided for the funeral of this unfortunate young man is very much to their credit. Though no relative was near, it was a sad funeral and there were tears in the eyes of many of the show people. One poor colored man wept so loud that he fled from the grave and the assembly until he could control his feelings. —Ridgway Advocate.

Theo. Newton, wife and child, spent Monday in Buffalo.

On Friday the tire ran off the "hog" at the new mill and shut the mill down for the afternoon.

Everybody are welcome at the "shoot" held every Wednesday evening, near the Iron Works.

Miss Lily Card, of Moore Hill, is staying with E. L. Mason's family until the fall term of school opens.

The proudest man in town is Mr. Dalrymple, better known as "Dell." Cause: He is wearing the sharp-shooting badge of the Emporium Gun Club, this week.

Mr. Connie Newton, of the Pennsy, has a two weeks' vacation, which he is spending in Meadville, Pittsburgh and Beaver Falls. Just before leaving he had the misfortune to lose his pocket-book, containing forty-one dollars.

A son of Wm. Swartz, a camp cook, fell from the dock at the new mill Monday, sustaining a severe shaking up and spraining one wrist. It is a drop of more than 12 feet where he fell and it is surprising that he was not more seriously injured.

Silas Gardner has sold over $15.00 worth of ginseng, which is doing well for so early in the season. Persons who have never seen this plant in growing season may avail themselves of the opportunity by calling at the residence of Daniel Downey, cor. Vine and Fifth streets.

Mr. Henry Auchu, spent Sunday in Buffalo, looking up the manufactories and lots between there and Niagara Falls, with a view to investing in lots at the latter place. It is very interesting to hear Mr. Auchu tell of the power plants and dynamos, factories and machinery. It is well worth one's time to hear him explain what he saw on this trip.

The order forbidding riding on the side walks makes it very inconvenient to the employees at the new mill, as some of them live at least a mile-and-a-half from the mill, and in case of muddy roads such employees must get up at 4:30 a. m. in order to be at the mill in time to begin work at six o'clock. The west end of Sixth street is simply impassible for a wheel most of the time and some of the time not fit for lumber wagons. It overflows with water in wet seasons, consequently is left full of rubbish. Then, that little hill at the corporation limits, is a mass of loose stones, making it hard to ride down, and almost impossible to ride up. If people must ride in the streets these two places, at least, ought to be repaired. If the Borough cannot do it, tax each bicycle one dollar a year and use the money to cinder a path along Fourth street and up to the top of the hill. The township road is much better, as there is a path on which to ride, but the trouble is to get out of town. This dollar a year plan would soon build a good path from the Junction to the mill. Some towns license wheels to ride on the walks, under certain conditions, at a fee for the privilege. If one of the stipulated rules is broken the license of the offender is null and void for that year. This works well, but we prefer the cinder path expressly for wheels. In several counties in New York State, a wheel is taxed in order to even ride the roads and the money is used to build walks and paths and has been in effect so long that it is a pleasure to ride a wheel in those counties. Let us hear from someone else in regard to this matter, either to license the wheels to use the walks, or build paths.

The August number of the Woman's Home Companion begins with a keen article by William Allen White, on "The Typical American Girl." There is a wealth of short stories by such writers as Eden Phillpotts, W. D. Alden, Gelett Burgess, Richard Stillman Powell, Elliott Flower and Frederick M. Smith. "The Philanthropia Work of ths Roman Catholic church" is treated of by the Rev. John Talbot Smith. The departments are given over to summer matter. Mrs. Herrick tells how to give a high tea; the fashions are devoted to the vacation girl, and the editor has a department of reviews of books for summer reading. Altogether this is especially suited for summer holidays. Published by The Crowell Publishing Company, Springfield, Ohio; one dollar a year; ten cents a copy.
